Ike May Reply To Red Jibes

U.S. Sees Much Good Done on Orient Trip

HONOLULU (AP) — President Eisenhower was reported today to be planning to hit back at Red China claims that his Far Eastern tour was an ignominious failure.

The President's rebuttal and a contention that much good was accomplished despite cancellation of his visit to Japan will come, it was understood, when he reports to the American people next week.

Eisenhower will make a nationwide television-radio address within a few days after returning to Washington. Present indications are he will arrive there Saturday or Sunday.

Announcement of the President's plans to go on the air was made by White House Secretary James C. Hagerty as Eisenhower, who arrived in Hawaii from the Orient Monday, continued to relax in glorious weather. He arranged to play another round of golf today.

The President talked over his Far Eastern journey by telephone Tuesday with Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, in Washington.

After the 25-minute conversation, Hagerty reported that both Eisenhower and Herter feel that the President's visit to the Philippines, Nationalist China and Korea were completely successful.

Saying he had not seen a complete account, Hagerty declined comment on Herter telling a congressional committee that the administration had misjudged the riotous situation which led to cancellation of Eisenhower's Tokyo visit.

Told that Herter also testified that Eisenhower is abandoning personal high-level diplomacy and plans no more goodwill trips abroad, Hagerty remarked only that he has been saying for some time that he knew of no arrangements for any additional trips outside the country.

Clevelander Wins Top Job In Girls State

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Ruby Chapman of Cleveland will be inaugurated tonight as governor of Buckeye Girls' State by Judge Carl V. Weygandt, chief justice of the Ohio Supreme Court.

Miss Chapman, the third Negro girl to be elected to the post, and other state and county officials of the make-believe state were elected Tuesday. Weygandt has been officiating at the ceremony since Girls' State began 14 years ago.

Gov. Michael V. DiSalle will speak at the banquet tonight.

Most of today will be spent organizing and operating the new governments.

Others to be inaugurated are Joan Burridge of Cincinnati, as lieutenant governor; Michelle Kennedy of Newton Falls, attorney general; Elizabeth Hunt of Adams Mills (Coshocton County), auditor; Teris Schery of Marysville, secretary of state, and Sue Serrott of Columbus, treasurer.

The governor and the attorney general are Federalists. The others all are from the Nationalist Party.

The Nationalists won the House of Representatives, getting 39 of 72 seats. The Federalists, however, control the Senate by a slim margin, 19-17.

Losers in the state races include Jane Fawcett, of Columbus, daughter of Ohio State University president Novice G. Fawcett. She was Nationalist candidate for governor.

OUTLINES POLICIES — A smiling Vice President Richard Nixon turns up in St. Louis to keynote the 40th convention of the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce. Nixon outlined the economic policies on which he hopes to run for president.

One-Mill City Operating Levy To Go on November 8 Ballot

The city will ask voters to approve a 1-mill operating tax levy in the November 8 election.

This will be a renewal of a levy passed three years ago, which was an extension of a previous levy to improve fire department equipment. The levy means about $18,000 a year toward operation of city services.

City Council last night adopted a resolution asking the County Board of Elections to place the measure on the ballot in November.

The lawmakers also enacted an ordinance setting fines for parking meter violations at 25 cents, if paid by midnight of the day of the violation, and at $2 thereafter. This makes official the meter fine box system installed here several months ago.

The law contains a section, ruled legal by the Ohio Supreme Court, that places the responsibility for parking violations on the owner of car even if another member of his family actually parked the car illegally.

COUNCIL authorized Safety Director Miller Fissell to negotiate new fire protection contracts with Circleville and Washington Twps. The present contracts expire June 30.

Contracts are based on tax valuation of the townships. Currently Washington Twp. is paying the city about $1,585 a year and Circleville Twp. is paying about $3,900.

Legislators approved three ordinances last night transferring money from one fund to another. A total of $1,074 will be transferred from the contingent fund to pay for the city's share of the Pontius Lane - Griner Ave., improvements, such as curbs and gutters and storm sewer. The city's share is 2 per cent of the total cost.

A sum of $100 was transferred from the contingent fund to Municipal Court Witness Fees fund; and $5,000 was transferred from the Water Works Operating Fund to the Water Main Extensions Fund for the purchase of pipe, valves and fittings.

Larry Metz, a refuse collector, asked Council to pass an ordinance requiring licensing of collectors. Other haulers were on hand to oppose the issue. Council did not act.

Japan Rioting Loses Steam

Protest against Pact Appears on Wane Now

TOKYO (AP) — An 11th-hour leftist demonstration to stave off activation of the U.S.-Japan security pact lost steam tonight as a mob of 40,000 began wearily dispersing.

The snake-dancing columns shouted "Down with Kishi" and "Dissolve Parliament" as they circled the Parliament building and thundered past the Foreign Ministry and Tokyo police headquarters after a morning of short strikes. But a predicted turnout of 100,000 failed to materialize, and by nightfall the demonstration apparently had fizzled.

The controversial pact, which gives the United States bases in Japan for another 10 years and promises American defense of this former enemy nation against outside attack, needed only U.S. Senate approval and the exchange of ratification instruments to become law.

The exchange of documents in Tokyo is expected to come within hours after the Senate approval and President Eisenhower's signature in Honolulu.

Plans for delivery of the ratification documents were surrounded with secrecy in an effort to thwart the desperate leftist opponents of the treaty. Students, laborers and Socialists were reported planning to blockade U.S. Ambassador Douglas MacArthur II and Foreign Minister Aiichiro Fujiyama in their homes to prevent them getting together to complete the formalities.

Premier Nobusuke Kishi's Cabinet put its final approval to the pact late Tuesday night, and Emperor Hirohito affixed the great imperial seal to it soon after. To prevent leftist interference, the documents were taken secretly to each Cabinet member individually and then to the Emperor.

U.S. Orbits 2 Satellites With Single Rocket Shot

Sharp Candidate Differences Loom

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Further evidence emerged today of the sharp differences between candidates in both the Republican and Democratic races for the presidential nomination.

On the Republican side, the latest evidence was in public view. Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York offered it in major speeches Tuesday.

On the Democratic side, the latest evidence involved private party meetings. Supporters of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas were exchanging warnings that the other man couldn't win in November.

The Nixon-Rockefeller differences concerned the nation's economic growth and its method of making high policy decisions.

In a speech in St. Louis, Nixon criticized those who say that the Soviet Union is growing at a much faster economic rate than the United States and who call for government steps to change this.

"The critics argue that if we would just adopt their pet economic philosophy we too would grow like the Soviets," Nixon told the National Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"They invite us to join them in playing what is rapidly becoming the most fashionable political parlor game of our time—a game we might call 'growthmanship.' "

But Rockefeller, in a television interview in Binghamton, N.Y., said economic growth was "far more important than a parlor game. It affects the lives and well-being of the people of our country."

The governor, who says he would be available for a Republican draft at the national convention, has called often for an increased growth in the economy.

In an address before the Binghamton Rotary Club Tuesday, Rockefeller said "there is something seriously wrong with the working of the decision-making process of our government." He cited the U2 incident as one indication.

He said the government needs a super-cabinet official, a First Secretary of the Government to "assist the President in the exercise of his authority in the whole area of national security and international affairs."

This proposal was considered once by the Eisenhower administration and rejected. Rockefeller's revival of it was considered a criticism of administration policies, which Nixon has defended.

But, despite these differences, Nixon, likely winner of the nomination, said at a St. Louis news conference that "the Republican party is the most unified since 1956 when President Eisenhower was the unifying force."

In the Democratic political infighting, Kennedy supporters were asking party workers whether Johnson, a Texan, could carry New York, California, and other large states. The Kennedy people's implication was Johnson could not.

On the other hand, Johnson supporters were asking party workers whether Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, could carry any of their states. The implication of the Johnson people was that Kennedy could not.

Another Democratic candidate, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, gave a television audience his estimate of the relative strength of the United States and the Soviet Union.

"We have lost a great deal of strength," he said on the taped show—Today, NBC.

In Sacramento, Gov. Edmund Brown dashed the hopes of Democrats who wanted to get some of California's votes committed to them before the first ballot at the national convention.

He told an interviewer he would not release the state's 81 votes before the convention. They are pledged to him.

DiSalle Refutes Tax-Spend Rap

Governor Lists Hike In Requirements

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"If the people (of Ohio) were as superficial as you think they are, they would accept those statements without question. But the people are much wiser than you think."

This was Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's answer to a story in the Ohio Republican News criticizing what was termed his tax and spend program.

The weekly publication, known as the official voice of the Republican Party in Ohio, said no previous administration in Ohio ever collected and sent so much tax money in a single year.

The story said collections for the first 11 months of the state bookkeeping year ending June 30 exceeded 232 million dollars, compared with slightly more than 207 millions for the period in 1959.

DiSalle said that the people of Ohio "will also recognize the fact that never in the history of the State of Ohio has there been so many children educated in our public school system.

". . . so many students in our state universities.

". . . so much money spent for the care of patients in our mental institutions.

". . . (never) has it been necessary to afford old age pensioners the rate of pension that they are now receiving.

". . . (never) have the blind received the level of support now being received.

". . . (never) have dependent children received the level of support thy are now receiving.

". . . (never) have the disabled received the level of support now being received.

". . . (never) have the retired teachers received the monthly retirment assistance that they are now receiving.

". . . (never) have the school teachers of Ohio received the salaries they are now receiving.

". . . (never) has the population (of Ohio) been as great as it is today."

Lady Hiker Miffed At Columbus Cops

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A bit miffed because Columbus police had forced her to change her in-town route, Dr. Barbara Moore, the British coast-to-coast walker, took up her stride again at 4 a. m. today, enroute to Zanesville on U.S. 40, 56 miles east of here.

She said the police order to change her route through the city cost her some time and that the next city she hits she wants to take the route of her choice.

She stopped the night at a motel in suburban Reynoldsburg, about 10 miles east of Columbus. They'll give her about 46 miles of highway travel before she reaches Zanesville. She's expected to stop somewhere in the Zanesville area tonight.

42-Pound Moon Is Piggy Back Rider on Trip

Larger 223-Pounder Separated in Space In Unique Experiment

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Two shiny new U.S. satellites zipped cockily across the skies today, demonstrating to the world that Uncle Sam still has some tricks up his misstle sleeve.

The space intruders were hurled into orbit shortly after midnight by a single rocket, scoring a spectacular first for American missilemen.

The doubleheader rocket that turned the trick was a two-stage Thor-Able-Star, an Air Force vehicle making only its second flight. It rose smoothly from its searchlight-illuminated pad at 12:55 a.m. and streaked like a fiery comet toward the southeast.

The second stage fired for about four minutes, shut off and coasted for 20 minutes, then reignited for 13 seconds to kick the satellites into orbit.

The two new moonlets flashing the skies are Transit II-A, a second experimental navigation aid satellite, and a basket-ball-sized aluminum sphere crammed with instruments to measure solar radiation.

The latter is called a "piggy back" satellite because it hitchhiked a ride aboard the larger Transit payload.

Transit II-A is a 36-inch ball weighing 223 pounds. The tinier 42-pound package, looking much like a sea diver's helmet, was clamped to it until a spring device separated the pair in orbit.

America tried once before, with a Vanguard rocket, to fire a pair of satellites into orbit simultaneously, but failed. As far as is known, the Soviet Union has not attempted such a feat.

Confirmation of orbit came 1½ hours after launch when the satellite duo—the smaller leading the way—passed over a Seattle station on their first globe-circling passes.

Navy officials in Washington reported the satellites were spinning approximately in their intended orbits and were transmitting strong signals. They said it would be some time before the exact apogee and perigee are determined.

Both were aimed at near-circular orbits 500 miles high and at courses which would take them over all parts of the world between the Arctic and Antarctic circles. This covers most of the Soviet Union.

Transit II-A is an advanced version of Transit I-B, which was hoisted into orbit by the first Thor-Able-Star last April 13. Both are forerunners of an operational network of Transit satellites that can give ships, submarines and

Motorcyclists Ride through Church Tent

CINCINNATI (AP)—A band of 10 to 12 motorcyclists broke up an evangelist service at nearby Miamitown Tuesday night by riding their motorcycles down the main aisle of the tent where it was being held. Two persons were arrested.

The Rev. Maurice Ivie, who was conducting the service, said the group left after he threatened to call police but some of them returned later and slashed the tent and ropes with knives. He estimated the damage to the tent at several thousand dollars.

County Police Lt. James Harvey said he was told there were about 75 persons in the tent when the motorcyclists came riding in. No one was hurt but chairs were overturned as members of the congregation scattered.

The two arrested a short time later in a cafe were listed as Richard B. Terman, 29, of Ross, and Miss Jean Saffelder, 19, of Hamilton County. They were placed in the county jail in default of $1,000 bonds on charges of disturbing a religious meeting and malicious destruction of property.

Harvey said county police had been unable to determine the reason for the actions of the motorcyclists.

Swift Senate OK Given Japan Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today ratified the U.S.-Japanese Security Treaty by an overwhelming vote.

Japan's ratification became effective last Sunday.

Today's Senate vote came after a flurry of speechmaking sharply critical of the administration.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, said the treaty itself is in the "best interests" of the United States, Japan and the entire free world, but said the United States must shore up free countries with "a really massive offensive for peace."

Johnson added that there is "a depressing lack of vital, new ideas in our foreign policy."

And Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn), also supporting ratification, accused the State Department of being "clumsily" drawn into Japanese politics in support of the Kishi government despite what he called its "widespread unpopularity" in Japan.

Plans called for flying the U.S. documents to Hawaii, where Eisenhower is now resting en route home from his Far Eastern tour.

Japan completed the last of the preliminary formalities early today as Emperor Hirohito put the imperial seal to the treaty soon after Premier Nobusuke Kishi's Cabinet had given it final approval.

The 10-year treaty replaces one signed with Japan in 1951. It is designed to give the Japanese more status of an equal ally rather than a conquered power.

One year's notice after the 10-year period is required to make changes in the treaty's terms.

The United States agrees for the first time in writing to come to Japan's defense in case of attack, and relinquishes a former right to crush internal disorder in Japan. It also agrees to consult with the Japanese government before making any changes in its armed forces, weapons or bases there and before deploying Japan-based American forces anywhere in Asia.

Expert on Retarded Children To Speak Here Monday Night

Dr. Roderick N. Purcell, Ph. D, assistant chief, Bureau of Mental Deficiency in the Ohio Division of Mental Hygiene, will address Circleville Kiwanians Monday at 6:30 p. m. in the Mecca Restaurant.

Dr. Purcell will speak on the need of establishing a program for the mentally retarded children in Pickaway County.

All persons interested in this program are invited to attend the Kiwanis dinner meeting. Reservations may be made by phoning the County Superintendent of Schools, GR 4-2375.

Those not wishing to dine, but desiring to hear Dr. Purcell, may come to the Mecca dining room at 7:30 p. m. in time to hear the program.

* * *

DR. PURCELL will define the term "mentally retarded," discuss the necessity of helping these persons become self-supporting citizens and explain in detail the methods of starting such a program here.

There are at least 25 or more mentally retarded children in the county school system alone. At present, there is no adequate program for assisting these children.

It is hoped that the nucleus of a mentally retarded committee may be formed Monday to initiate a program. The public is urged to attend.

PCHS Takes Option on Schumm Home

The Pickaway County Historical Society last nigh obtained an option from Miss Marilyn Schumm to purchase her home at 146 W. Union St.

Signing of the option kicked off the Society's fund drive to collect funds and pledges for financing the purchase. The home will be used as a civic meeting place and county historical museum.

If the option is exercised, the purchase price will be $17,000. The old home has 10 rooms and was built by the county's only Congressman, A. T. Walling.

The option to purchase is for 60 days. Once it is exercised, the Society may take possession within 30 days.

* * *

THE WOMEN'S Federated Clubs of Pickaway County has loaned the Society $6,000 toward the purchase of the meeting place. Another $4,000 is available from the county general fund, which was alloted the PCHS by the County Commissioners for acquisition and operation of a historical museum.

A three - member committee already has collected nearly $1,500 from members of the Society and interested corporations. Chairman of the fund raising group is George Foresman. His committee is composed of Mrs. J. B. Stevenson and Miss Alice Ada May.

Anyone interested in either assisting in the drive or donating are asked to contact any of the three donation committee members.

Anyone owning items of historical significance are asked to loan them to the museum for display before the public.

Graduation Set Despite Picnic Drunk

SOLVAY, N. Y. (AP)—Seniors at Solvay High School, some of whom drank liquor at a class picnic that turned into a damaging brawl, will have graduation exercises, despite a recommendation to the contrary.

The Board of Education voted Tuesday night to allow the graduation to be held Saturday.

However, a senior breakfast, scheduled for Friday, was canceled.

Mary Pirro, board president who had suggested that the graduation exercises be canceled, rushed out halfway through the meeting and burst into tears. School officials asked her to return.

"Everybody is blaming me," Mrs. Pirro sobbed.

Mrs. Pirro said she understood girls smuggled liquor in their handbags to the picnic at a county park near Syracuse.

A park official said the pupils ripped down a bridge, damaged a toilet, and smashed windows.

The board said the school superintendent would meet individually with the parents of 12 pupils accused of misconduct.

33 Speeding Motorists Nabbed by 'Spy Plane'

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Using their own version of a "spy plane," the State Highway Patrol tapped 33 speeding motorists Tuesday on U.S. 40 near South Vienna. Highest speed recorded was 88 m.p.h. The legal limit is 60 m.p.h.

Patrolmen in the plane use a stopwatch to time vehicles between special lines painted on the road. The technique is used in all parts of the state, the patrol said.

Teays Valley People Ponder Third School Bond Attempt

This is the first in a series of articles concerning the question of returning the $1,900,000 high school bond issue for the Teays Valley School District to the ballot for a third time.

A majority of prominent Teays Valley School District businessmen, property owners and large farmland owners Monday night voted to return the Teays Valley $1,900,000 bond issue proposal to the ballot for a third time.

These men, numbering close to 40, met and discussed the bond issue, its necessity, possible reduction of the amount and other pertinent ideas.

The meeting was held in the Ashville - Harrison High School gymnasium. Teays Valley Board President Harold Hines presided over the session that lasted 3½ hours.

Two main questions face the board of education and parents of TV school children. They are: should the district vote on the bond issue a third time and, if so, to what extent should the issue be reduced or increased, if any?

* * *

TWICE NOW Teays Valley residents have resoundingly defeated the issue. It first appeared on the November, 1959 general election ballot and was dumped, 1,274-640, receiving only 33.4 per cent of the vote.

The board of education tried again in May and again the issue went down in defeat, 997-801, but the margin of loss was considerably less as the issue received 44.5 per cent of the vote. Only a majority is needed for passage.

Many ideas were discussed, but all centered upon one point — the children of the district need and deserve a better education than they are getting due to lack of room, educational facilities and equipment.

One discussion sent chills through the spines of Ashville, Harrison Twp. and Scioto Twp. residents. That was the future possibility of establishing Walnut Twp. as the district high school.

Walnut and Madison Twp. elementary students would be sent to Ashville and a portion of Ashville and Harrison Twp. grade school pupils would journey to Scioto because Ashville can't handle all the pupils.

Several board members feel that Walnut is best fitted for handling a 500-pupil high school at greatest efficiency. Hines re-emphasized that this alteration of the district is just an idea and not a definite plan of the board, but that he feels it the best solution if a third bond issue fails.

* * *

DISTRICT executive head, Earl R. Gregg, said that Teays Valley is using only 10 more teachers than would be utilized in the new building. This would amount to nearly $60,000.

A number of those on hand said they believe the last two proposals failed because many residents felt the operating costs would go up once the new school is erected.

School officials said they feel costs will remain the same, even though new departments would be added, but that operating costs are to rise as additional children reach school age. They said this

On the Democratic side, the latest evidence involved private party meetings. Supporters of Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas were exchanging warnings that the other man couldn't win in November.

The Nixon-Rockefeller differences concerned the nation's economic growth and its method of making high policy decisions.

In a speech in St. Louis, Nixon criticized those who say that the Soviet Union is growing at a much faster economic rate than the United States and who call for government steps to change this.

"The critics argue that if we would just adopt their pet economic philosophy we too would grow like the Soviets," Nixon told the National Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"They invite us to join them in playing what is rapidly becoming the most fashionable political parlor game of our time—a game we might call "growthmanship." "

But Rockefeller, in a television interview in Binghamton, N.Y., said economic growth was "far more important than a parlor game. It affects the lives and well-being of the people of our country."

The governor, who says he would be available for a Republican draft at the national convention, has called often for an increased growth in the economy.

In an address before the Binghamton Rotary Club Tuesday, Rockefeller said "there is something seriously wrong with the working of the decision-making process of our government." He cited the U2 incident as one indication.

He said the government needs a super-cabinet official, a First Secretary of the Government to "assist the President in the exercise of his authority in the whole area of national security and international affairs."

This proposal was considered once by the Eisenhower administration and rejected. Rockefeller's revival of it was considered a criticism of administration policies, which Nixon has defended.

But, despite these differences, Nixon, likely winner of the nomination, said at a St. Louis news conference that "the Republican party is the most unified since 1956 when President Eisenhower was the unifying force."

In the Democratic political infighting, Kennedy supporters were asking party workers whether Johnson, a Texan, could carry New York, California, and other large states. The Kennedy people's implication was Johnson could not.

On the other hand, Johnson supporters were asking party workers whether Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, could carry any of their states. The implication of the Johnson people was that Kennedy could not.

Another Democratic candidate, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, gave a television audience his estimate of the relative strength of the United States and the Soviet Union.

"We have lost a great deal of strength," he said on the taped show—Today, NBC.

In Sacramento, Gov. Edmund Brown dashed the hopes of Democrats who wanted to get some of California's votes committed to them before the first ballot at the national convention.

He told an interviewer he would not release the state's 81 votes before the convention. They are pledged to him.

DiSalle Refutes Tax-Spend Rap

Governor Lists Hike In Requirements

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—"If the people (of Ohio) were as superficial as you think they are, they would accept those statements without question. But the people are much wiser than you think."

This was Democratic Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's answer to a story in the Ohio Republican News criticizing what was termed his tax and spend program.

The weekly publication, known as the official voice of the Republican Party in Ohio, said no previous administration in Ohio ever collected and sent so much tax money in a single year.

The story said collections for the first 11 months of the state bookkeeping year ending June 30 exceeded 252 million dollars, compared with slightly more than 207 millions for the period in 1959.

DiSalle said that the people of Ohio "will also recognize the fact that never in the history of the State of Ohio has there been so many children educated in our public school system.

". . . so many students in our state universities.

". . . so much money spent for the care of patients in our mental institutions.

". . . (never) has it been necessary to afford old age pensioners the rate of pension that they are now receiving.

". . . (never) have the blind received the level of support now being received.

". . . (never) have dependent children received the level of support thy are now receiving.

". . . (never) have the disabled received the level of support now being received.

". . . (never) have the retired teachers received the monthly retirment assistance that they are now receiving.

". . . (never) have the school teachers of Ohio received the salaries they are now receiving.

". . . (never) has the population (of Ohio) been as great as it is today."

Lady Hiker Miffed At Columbus Cops

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A bit miffed because Columbus police had forced her to change her in-town route, Dr. Barbara Moore, the British coast-to-coast walker, took up her stride again at 4 a. m. today, enroute to Zanesville on U.S. 40, 56 miles east of here.

She said the police order to change her route through the city cost her some time and that the next city she hits she wants to take the route of her choice.

She stopped the night at a motel in suburban Reynoldsburg, about 10 miles east of Columbus. They'll give her about 46 miles of highway travel before she reaches Zanesville. She's expected to stop somewhere in the Zanesville area tonight.

42-Pound Moon Is Piggy Back Rider on Trip

Larger 223-Pounder Separated in Space In Unique Experiment

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —Two shiny new U.S. satellites zipped cockily across the skies today, demonstrating to the world that Uncle Sam still has some tricks up his missile sleeve.

The space intruders were hurled into orbit shortly after midnight by a single rocket, scoring a spectacular first for American missilemen.

The doubleheader rocket that turned the trick was a two-stage Thor-Able-Star, an Air Force vehicle making only its second flight. It rose smoothly from its searchlight-illuminated pad at 12:55 a.m. and streaked like a fiery comet toward the southeast.

The second stage fired for about four minutes, shut off and coasted for 20 minutes, then reignited for 13 seconds to kick the satellites into orbit.

The two new moonlets flashing the skies are Transit II-A, a second experimental navigation aid satellite, and a basket-ball-sized aluminum sphere crammed with instruments to measure solar radiation.

The latter is called a "piggy back" satellite because it hitchhiked a ride aboard the larger Transit payload.

Transit II-A is a 36-inch ball weighing 223 pounds. The tinier 42-pound package, looking much like a sea diver's helmet, was clamped to it until a spring device separated the pair in orbit.

America tried once before, with a Vanguard rocket, to fire a pair of satellites into orbit simultaneously, but failed. As far as is known, the Soviet Union has not attempted such a feat.

Confirmation of orbit came 1½ hours after launch when the satellite duo—the smaller leading the way—passed over a Seattle station on their first globe-circling passes.

Navy officials in Washington reported the satellites were spinning approximately in their intended orbits and were transmitting strong signals. They said it would be some time before the exact apogee and perigee are determined.

Both were aimed at near-circular orbits 500 miles high and at courses which would take them over all parts of the world between the Arctic and Antarctic circles. This covers most of the Soviet Union.

Transit II-A is an advanced version of Transit I-B, which was hoisted into orbit by the first Thor-Able-Star last April 13. Both are forerunners of an operational network of Transit satellites that can give ships, submarines and

CINCINNATI (AP)—A band of 10 to 12 motorcyclists broke up an evangelist service at nearby Miamitown Tuesday night by riding their motorcycles down the main aisle of the tent where it was being held. Two persons were arrested.

The Rev. Maurice Ivie, who was conducting the service, said the group left after he threatened to call police but some of them returned later and slashed the tent and ropes with knives. He estimated the damage to the tent at several thousand dollars.

County Police Lt. James Harvey said he was told there were about 75 persons in the tent when the motorcyclists came riding in. No one was hurt but chairs were overturned as members of the congregation scattered.

The two arrested a short time later in a cafe were listed as Richard B. Terman, 29, of Ross, and Miss Jean Saffelder, 19, of Hamilton County. They were placed in the county jail in default of $1,000 bonds on charges of disturbing a religious meeting and malicious destruction of property.

Harvey said county police had been unable to determine the reason for the actions of the motorcyclists.

Swift Senate OK Given Japan Pact

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate today ratified the U.S.-Japanese Security Treaty by an overwhelming vote.

Japan's ratification became effective last Sunday.

Today's Senate vote came after a flurry of speechmaking sharply critical of the administration.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas, the Democratic leader, said the treaty itself is in the "best interests" of the United States, Japan and the entire free world, but said the United States must shore up free countries with "a really massive offensive for peace."

Johnson added that there is "a depressing lack of vital, new ideas in our foreign policy."

And Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn), also supporting ratification, accused the State Department of being "clumsily" drawn into Japanese politics in support of the Kishi government despite what he called its "widespread unpopularity" in Japan.

Plans called for flying the U.S. documents to Hawaii, where Eisenhower is now resting en route home from his Far Eastern tour.

Japan completed the last of the preliminary formalities early today as Emperor Hirohito put the imperial seal to the treaty soon after Premier Nobusuke Kishi's Cabinet had given it final approval.

The 10-year treaty replaces one signed with Japan in 1951. It is designed to give the Japanese more status of an equal ally rather than a conquered power.

One year's notice after the 10-year period is required to make changes in the treaty's terms.

The United States agrees for the first time in writing to come to Japan's defense in case of attack, and relinquishes a former right to crush internal disorder in Japan. It also agrees to consult with the Japanese government before making any changes in its armed forces, weapons or bases there and before deploying Japan-based American forces anywhere in Asia.

Expert on Retarded Children To Speak Here Monday Night

Dr. Roderick N. Purcell, Ph. D, assistant chief, Bureau of Mental Deficiency in the Ohio Division of Mental Hygiene, will address Circleville Kiwanians Monday at 6:30 p. m. in the Mecca Restaurant.

Dr. Purcell will speak on the need of establishing a program for the mentally retarded children in Pickaway County.

All persons interested in this program are invited to attend the Kiwanis dinner meeting. Reservations may be made by phoning the County Superintendent of Schools, GR 4-2375.

Those not wishing to dine, but desiring to hear Dr. Purcell, may come to the Mecca dining room at 7:30 p. m. in time to hear the program.

* * *

DR. PURCELL will define the term "mentally retarded," discuss the necessity of helping these persons become self-supporting citizens and explain in detail the methods of starting such a program here.

There are at least 25 or more mentally retarded children in the county school system alone. At present, there is no adequate program for assisting these children.

It is hoped that the nucleus of a mentally retarded committee may be formed Monday to initiate a program. The public is urged to attend.

PCHS Takes Option on Schumm Home

The Pickaway County Historical Society last nigh obtained an option from Miss Marilyn Schumm to purchase her home at 146 W. Union St.

Signing of the option kicked off the Society's fund drive to collect funds and pledges for financing the purchase. The home will be used as a civic meeting place and county historical museum.

If the option is exercised, the purchase price will be $17,000. The old home has 10 rooms and was built by the county's only Congressman, A. T. Walling.

The option to purchase is for 60 days. Once it is exercised, the Society may take possession within 30 days.

* * *

THE WOMEN'S Federated Clubs of Pickaway County has loaned the Society $6,000 toward the purchase of the meeting place. Another $4,000 is available from the county general fund, which was alloted the PCHS by the County Commissioners for acquisition and operation of a historical museum.

A three - member committee already has collected nearly $1,500 from members of the Society and interested corporations. Chairman of the fund raising group is George Foresman. His committee is composed of Mrs. J. B. Stevenson and Miss Alice Ada May.

Anyone interested in either assisting in the drive or donating are asked to contact any of the three donation committee members.

Anyone owning items of historical significance are asked to loan them to the museum for display before the public.

Graduation Set Despite Picnic Drunk

SOLVAY, N. Y. (AP)—Seniors at Solvay High School, some of whom drank liquor at a class picnic that turned into a damaging brawl, will have graduation exercises, despite a recommendation to the contrary.

The Board of Education voted Tuesday night to allow the graduation to be held Saturday.

However, a senior breakfast, scheduled for Friday, was canceled.

Mary Pirro, board president who had suggested that the graduation exercises be canceled, rushed out halfway through the meeting and burst into tears. School officials asked her to return.

"Everybody is blaming me," Mrs. Pirro sobbed.

Mrs. Pirro said she understood girls smuggled liquor in their handbags to the picnic at a county park near Syracuse.

A park official said the pupils ripped down a bridge, damaged a toilet, and smashed windows.

The board said the school superintendent would meet individually with the parents of 12 pupils accused of misconduct.

33 Speeding Motorists Nabbed by 'Spy Plane'

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Using their own version of a "spy plane," the State Highway Patrol tapped 33 speeding motorists Tuesday on U.S. 40 near South Vienna. Highest speed recorded was 88 m.p.h. The legal limit is 60 m.p.h.

Patrolmen in the plane use a stopwatch to time vehicles between special lines painted on the road. The technique is used in all parts of the state, the patrol said.

Teays Valley People Ponder Third School Bond Attempt

This is the first in a series of articles concerning the question of returning the $1,900,000 high school bond issue for the Teays Valley School District to the ballot for a third time.

A majority of prominent Teays Valley School District businessmen, property owners and large farmland owners Monday night voted to return the Teays Valley $1,900,000 bond issue proposal to the ballot for a third time.

These men, numbering close to 40, met and discussed the bond issue, its necessity, possible reduction of the amount and other pertinent ideas.

The meeting was held in the Ashville - Harrison High School gymnasium. Teays Valley Board President Harold Hines presided over the session that lasted 3½ hours.

Two main questions face the board of education and parents of TV school children. They are: should the district vote on the bond issue a third time and, if so, to what extent should the issue be reduced or increased, if any?

* * *

TWICE NOW Teays Valley residents have resoundingly defeated the issue. It first appeared on the November, 1959 general election ballot and was dumped, 1,274-640, receiving only 33.4 per cent of the vote.

The board of education tried again in May and again the issue went down in defeat, 997-801, but the margin of loss was considerably less as the issue received 44.5 per cent of the vote. Only a majority is needed for passage.

Many ideas were discussed, but all centered upon one point — the children of the district need and deserve a better education than they are getting due to lack of room, educational facilities and equipment.

One discussion sent chills through the spines of Ashville, Harrison Twp. and Scioto Twp. residents. That was the future possibility of establishing Walnut Twp. as the district high school.

Walnut and Madison Twp. elementary students would be sent to Ashville and a portion of Ashville and Harrison Twp. grade school pupils would journey to Scioto because Ashville can't handle all the pupils.

Several board members feel that Walnut is best fitted for handling a 500-pupil high school at greatest efficiency. Hines re-emphasized that this alteration of the district is just an idea and not a definite plan of the board, but that he feels it the best solution if a third bond issue fails.

* * *

DISTRICT executive head, Earl R. Gregg, said that Teays Valley is using only 10 more teachers than would be utilized in the new building. This would amount to nearly $60,000.

A number of those on hand said they believe the last two proposals failed because many residents felt the operating costs would go up once the new school is erected.

School officials said they feel costs will remain the same, even though new departments would be added, but that operating costs are to rise as additional children reach school age. They said this can't be helped, regardless of the size and efficiency of a new high school.

Interviewing bond issue workers after the May 3 election, school officials determined that the two biggest complaints from TV residents were too high a tax load already and too high a price tag on the new building.

Many couldn't understand the way voting went in certain precincts. Ashville, Harrison Twp. and Madison Twp. passed the bond issue, as well as Orient, the farthest point from the proposed site of the school, just north of Ashville.

The general feeling was that precincts voting against the issue still weren't satisfied with consolidation and cast a spiteful ballot.

• • •

THEY FELT that South Bloomfield's anti vote was because it didn't want to lose its elementary school and would, if the new high school were built.

Orient is 17 miles from the school site, but passed the issue by 66 2-3 per cent. Harrison Twp. the wealthiest precinct, will carry the heaviest tax burden, but approved the issue.

Walnut Twp.'s vote was the sore point with many of those present. Its two precincts cast the heaviest against the issue, even more so than the firs tattempt.

They felt that Walnut's attitude is "we are satisfied with what we have so the heck with the rest of the district." Another man wondered if Walnut is jealous of Ashville and Harrison Twp.

They feel Walnut Twp. residents are worried that their children will lose out in leadership of the school as well as athletics, scholarship and other extra - curricular activities.

Hines, from Walnut, said the area used to support all its own school tax levies and bond issues without much trouble, but that feeling now has disappeared.

The second article of this series will appear tomorrow. It will deal with the discussion of bond issue millage, teacher employment, necessary state standards for a high school charter and other sidelights of the Monday meeting.

Khrush Says Kremlin's Aim Still Peaceful Coexistence

LONDON (AP)—In an apparent rebuke to Red China's leaders, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said Tuesday the Kremlin has no intention of giving up its policy of peaceful coexistence and relaxation of tension.

"No world war is needed for the triumph of Socialist ideas throughout the world," Khrushchev said in a speech at the third congress of the Romanian Congress party in Bucharest.

"These ideas will get the upper hand in the peaceful competition between the countries of socialism and capitalism," he declared. The text of the speech was published by Tass, the Soviet news agency.

Khrushchev did not mention Red China, but his remarks were an obvious reply to Peiping's sharpshooting at the Soviet premier's professed policy of seeking better relations with the capitalist nations. Chinese propaganda has harped on Lenin's statement that war between communism and capitalism is inevitable.

Khrushchev recalled that the co-existence policy was linked directly to the line laid down by the 20th Soviet party congress of 1956 that "war is not inevitable in our time."

"Those who do not understand this," he said, "do not believe in the power of creative abilities of the working class, underestimate the might of the Socialist camp and do not believe in the great attractiveness of socialism which has clearly demonstrated its advantages over capitalism."

In a new blast at the Eisenhower administration, Khrushchev said the Soviet people hope to see in America "the election of a president and the formation of a government which recognizes and corrects the mistakes committed by the present government."

The Soviet Premier said the demonstrations that helped overthrow the U.S.-backed governments in Korea and Turkey and those in Japan opposing the U.S.-Japan security treaty showed that "the American imperialists and their adventurist policy have so discredited themselves that they have become hateful not only to the peoples of Socialist countries, but also to the peoples of their allies."

Khrushchev shrugged off the importance of U.S. spy plane flights. They missed photographing the Soviet Union's rocket bases, he claimed, discovered nothing of importance to U.S. defense and failed to uncover "powerful military means" the Soviet Union has developed.

Presbyterian Church Books Trial for Tax-Dodging Cleric

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Presbytery has decided to hold a trial under church law of a controversial pacifist minister who won't pay his taxes.

The Rev. Maurice F. McCrackin is the center of the presbytery action, announced Tuesday night without other comment from church leaders.

The presbytery said its leaders want to determine if th eminister is righ or wrong in his stand against taxes.

The Rev. Mr. McCrackin says he hates war, and because income taxes help pay for weapons of war, he won't pay.

He said he has refused to pay part or all his tax since 1949.

The minister served five months in federal prison last year for refusing to answer an Internal Revenue Service summons to talk over his taxes.

His church, West Cincinnati-St. Barnbas, a combined and integrated Presbyterian-Episcopal congregation, welcomed him back.

Presbytery church leaders did not say what the trial procedure would be, nor did they indicate what action might be taken if the Rev. Mr. McCrackin is found guilty.

The presbytery, representing 72 southeast Ohio churches, said a commission was named to investigate these charges against the minister:

He refused to file income tax returns or pay tax.

"His repudiation of a particular law has led to repudiation in the process of law."

The Rev. Mr. McCrackin "claiming that he has acted out of conscience in his disobedience of civil authority, is now encouraging others to likewise refuse to pay their income tax or file income tax reports."

The Rev. Mr. McCrackin declined to take any part in the trial. He forced court aides to carry him in and out of the courtroom and refused to aid court-appointed attorneys in his defense.

Ashville Signs Contract with County Jail

Ashville City Council Monday approved a contract with the Pickaway County Jail for housing of prisoners.

Andrew Ward, who has been assisting Ashville Marshal Glen Clay, appeared before Council and stated that a stop sign should be erected at the intersection of Griggs and Randolph Sts. This was adopted.

Virgil Waldon advised Council that an alley immediately south of the Lutheran Church was being used as an avenue for fast moving motor vehicles.

After discussing the seriousness of the situation because of the Church Bible School being in session, causing danger to the children; Council decided to purchase six slow signs for erection there.

• • •

COUNCIL considered moving a maple tree from the tennis court parking area to a new location to be determined at a later date by Street Commissioner Claude Ward.

Council instructed assistant clerk, George Forquer, to send a bill to the Commercial Motor Freight Co. Columbus, for $50 for damage to the traffic light on N. Long St.

Madison Twp. Man Files Suit For Return of Real Estate

Fred LM Codner, Madison Twp., recently filed suit in the Pickaway County Clerk of Courts' office asking the court to rescind a deed and return his home to him.

Named as defendants in the suit were Kenneth P. Welch, his wife, Sophie E., and the Peoples Bank Co., Canal Winchester.

According to Codner's petition, he owned 1.94 acres of land in Madison Twp. upon which he had constructed a modern house. He said purchase of the real estate cost him most of his $18,000 life savings.

The 73-year-old Codner said that in February, 1958 he entered an oral agreement with his nephew, Welch, and Welch's wife, to deed her one-half interest in his real estate in consideration for the defendants to provide him a home, do his laundry, prepare his meals and other necessities.

• • •

HE SAID both parties agreed that the real estate needed improvements, including a garage, but there was need to borrow the money. Codner said he was forced to deed the other half of his property to Welch before he would agree to execute a note and mortgage.

For this consideration, Codner said the Welchs agreed to reserve him a life estate and pay all his medical and hospital expenses even if it meant mortgaging their property.

Codner said a promisory note for $5,000 was executed on July 12, 1958 with the People Bank Co. He said the defendants agreed to make all payments on the note, pay all property taxes and maintain adequate insurance on the home.

His petition stated that $3,000 went for improvement of the home and the other $2,000 was spent or still is in the possession of the Welch's.

The Welchs moved in with Codner in September, 1958 along with their daughter, Carol Brown, and grandchild, Patricia Welch.

He said that once moved in, the defendants' treatment of him caused his health to decline. He said they cursed him, refused to eat food he prepared for them, denied him any furniture except one chair and his bedroom fixtures:

• • •

THAT ALTHOUGH he bought most of the food he was forced to prepare his own meals, was forced to keep his food in a refrigerator in the basement and Mrs. Welch and her daughter constantly ridiculed him and threatened him bodily harm.

He said he so feared for his safety that he locked his bedroom door at night and on several occasions, Mrs. Welch threatened to kill him.

Codner said he suffered a heart attack on February 16 and was confined to bed three days when the Welchs forced him to again prepare his own meals, although his doctor directed him not to climb up and down stairs.

He said that due to mistreatment and concern for his safety he suffered a severe heart attack on March 26 and was confined to a hospital. He stated he now is convalescing in the home of a brother.

By reason of the Welchs misconduct, abuse and neglect and complete failure to live up to their obligations, he asked the court to void the deed and he be granted complete possession and ownership of the real estate.

The Peoples Bank denied knowledge of Codner's alleged facts and asked the court to protect its mortgage. It is represented by Stevenson and Stevenson, a Columbus legal firm.

The Welchs, represented by George Young and Tom A. Renick, answered the suit, stating they feel the case will be decided on a question of fraud, mistake or failure of consideration. J. W. Adkins represents Codner.

Stock Mart Quiet for 2nd Session

NEW YORK (AP) — A mixed pattern ruled in the stock market today as activity slackened for the second straight session.

Radio Corp. ran up more than 1 point, recovering some of its recent loss. Raytheon also advanced but for the most part electronics displayed no fireworks.

Recent trading favorites came in for some profit taking. Bulova dropped 1 point as traders sold on the good news of favorable earnings. Universal Match was off a small fraction.

Otis elevator gained 3 on signing of an agreement to manufacture automatic pinsetting machines for Bowl-Mor Co.

Brunswick tumbled nearly 3 and American Machine and Foundry 1½. They are both big pinsetting machine producers.

There was a 15,500 share block of Lily Tulip at 51, down 2¾. The stock subsequently recovered a small portion of this decline. A 10,000 share block of Bell & Howell moved at 52, down ⅝ but the stock later recovered.

Royal Dutch ran up nearly 1 point in the oil section but the rest of the stocks in this category were not able to continue with the previous session's little rally.

Rails and utilities were little changed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down .10 at 221.50 with industrials down .40, rails up .10 and utilities up .10.

Corporate bonds were lower in dull trading.

airplanes accurate position fixes in any weather, day or night, anywhere in the world.

Two or three more test transits are scheduled for launching before the system becomes operational, probably in 1962. Then, four of these space lighthouses will whirl about the earth in evenly spaced orbits. They will radio a constant stream of information to be translated by navigators into longitude and latitude.

They are expected to provide accurate fixes within one-tenth of a mile. Present navigation aids give position fixes of half a mile at best and are dependent on weather.

The Defense Department has given high military priority to the Transit program because of its importance to Polaris missile submarines. By extending a whip antenna above the ocean surface, these nuclear subs will be able to obtain a position reading from the nearest Transit. This information would be vital in plotting missile trajectories.

Primary mission of the piggy back satellite was to measure various types of radiation in the ionosphere, an electrified belt extending from 35 miles to several hundred miles above the earth.

County Court Dismisses Suit

The Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Saturday dismissed the case of Mrs. Edward E. Whitley vs. the Ohio Bureau of Workman's Compensation.

The court dismissed Mrs. Whitley's suit because she failed to plead within 15 days from the filing of a court order on January 27.

Mrs. Whitley, widow of Edward Earl, appealed a decision of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau which disallowed her claim.

She said her husband was injured while working at the Container Corporation of America's local plant and suffered pain until his death.

Mrs. Whitley stated her husband committeed suicide as a result of his injuries which drove him into a state of mental derangement.

Interviewing bond issue workers after the May 3 election, school officials determined that the two biggest complaints from TV residents were too high a tax load already and too high a price tag on the new building.

Many couldn't understand the way voting went in certain precincts. Ashville, Harrison Twp. and Madison Twp. passed the bond issue, as well as Orient, the farthest point from the proposed site of the school, just north of Ashville.

The general feeling was that precincts voting against the issue still weren't satisfied with consolidation and cast a spiteful ballot.

• • •

THEY FELT that South Bloomfield's anti vote was because it didn't want to lose its elementary school and would, if the new high school were built.

Orient is 17 miles from the school site, but passed the issue by 66 2-3 per cent. Harrison Twp. the wealthiest precinct, will carry the heaviest tax burden, but approved the issue.

Walnut Twp.'s vote was the sore point with many of those present. Its two precincts cast the heaviest against the issue, even more so than the firs tattempt.

They felt that Walnut's attitude is "we are satisfied with what we have so the heck with the rest of the district." Another man wondered if Walnut is jealous of Ashville and Harrison Twp.

They feel Walnut Twp. residents are worried that their children will lose out in leadership of the school as well as athletics, scholarship and other extra - curricular activities.

Hines, from Walnut, said the area used to support all its own school tax levies and bond issues without much trouble, but that feeling now has disappeared.

The second article of this series will appear tomorrow. It will deal with the discussion of bond issue millage, teacher employment, necessary state standards for a high school charter and other sidelights of the Monday meeting.

Khrush Says Kremlin's Aim Still Peaceful Coexistence

LONDON (AP)—In an apparent rebuke to Red China's leaders, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said Tuesday the Kremlin has no intention of giving up its policy of peaceful coexistence and relaxation of tension.

"No world war is needed for the triumph of Socialist ideas throughout the world," Khrushchev said in a speech at the third congress of the Romanian Congress party in Bucharest.

"These ideas will get the upper hand in the peaceful competition between the countries of socialism and capitalism," he declared. The text of the speech was published by Tass, the Soviet news agency.

Khrushchev did not mention Red China, but his remarks were an obvious reply to Peiping's sharpshooting at the Soviet premier's professed policy of seeking better relations with the capitalist nations. Chinese propaganda has harped on Lenin's statement that war between communism and capitalism is inevitable.

Khrushchev recalled that the co-existence policy was linked directly to the line laid down by the 20th Soviet party congress of 1956 that "war is not inevitable in our time."

"Those who do not understand this," he said, "do not believe in the power of creative abilities of the working class, underestimate the might of the Socialist camp and do not believe in the great attractiveness of socialism which has clearly demonstrated its advantages over capitalism."

In a new blast at the Eisenhower administration, Khrushchev said the Soviet people hope to see in America "the election of a president and the formation of a government which recognizes and corrects the mistakes committed by the present government."

The Soviet Premier said the demonstrations that helped overthrow the U.S.-backed governments in Korea and Turkey and those in Japan opposing the U.S.-Japan security treaty showed that "the American imperialists and their adventurist policy have so discredited themselves that they have become hateful not only to the peoples of Socialist countries, but also to the peoples of their allies."

Khrushchev shrugged off the importance of U.S. spy plane flights. They missed photographing the Soviet Union's rocket bases, he claimed, discovered nothing of importance to U.S. defense and failed to uncover "powerful military means" the Soviet Union has developed.

After serving as an Army Chaplain in World War I, he received his S.T.M. degree from Western Theological Seminary and received an honorary D.D. degree from Thiel College.

In 1913-14, he was coach at the Terrill Prepratory School in Dallas, Tex., and in 1918, coached the Army's Sixth Regiment team at Camp Jackson, S. C., after attending the Chaplains' School at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky.

• • •

HE HAS served Lutheran churches throughout Ohio and Pittsburgh. He was pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church, Pittsburgh, from 1945 until his retirement at pastor emeritus in 1959. He is a member of the board of trustees of Thiel College, and is also a member of the Authors Club of Pittsburgh.

Presbyterian Church Books Trial for Tax-Dodging Cleric

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Cincinnati Presbytery has decided to hold a trial under church law of a controversial pacifist minister who won't pay his taxes.

The Rev. Maurice F. McCrackin is the center of the presbytery action, announced Tuesday night without other comment from church leaders.

The presbytery said its leaders want to determine if th eminister is righ or wrong in his stand against taxes.

The Rev. Mr. McCrackin says he hates war, and because income taxes help pay for weapons of war, he won't pay.

He said he has refused to pay part or all his tax since 1949.

The minister served five months in federal prison last year for refusing to answer an Internal Revenue Service summons to talk over his taxes.

His church, West Cincinnati-St. Barnbas, a combined and integrated Presbyterian-Episcopal congregation, welcomed him back.

Presbytery church leaders did not say what the trial procedure would be, nor did they indicate what action might be taken if the Rev. Mr. McCrackin is found guilty.

The presbytery, representing 72 southeast Ohio churches, said a commission was named to investigate these charges against the minister:

He refused to file income tax returns or pay tax.

"His repudiation of a particular law has led to repudiation in the process of law."

The Rev. Mr. McCrackin "claiming that he has acted out of conscience in his disobedience of civil authority, is now encouraging others to likewise refuse to pay their income tax or file income tax reports."

The Rev. Mr. McCrackin declined to take any part in the trial. He forced court aides to carry him in and out of the courtroom and refused to aid court-appointed attorneys in his defense.

Ashville Signs Contract with County Jail

Ashville City Council Monday approved a contract with the Pickaway County Jail for housing of prisoners.

Andrew Ward, who has been assisting Ashville Marshal Glen Clay, appeared before Council and stated that a stop sign should be erected at the intersection of Griggs and Randolph Sts. This was adopted.

Virgil Waldon advised Council that an alley immediately south of the Lutheran Church was being used as an avenue for fast moving motor vehicles.

After discussing the seriousness of the situation because of the Church Bible School being in session, causing danger to the children; Council decided to purchase six slow signs for erection there.

• • •

COUNCIL considered moving a maple tree from the tennis court parking area to a new location to be determined at a later date by Street Commissioner Claude Ward.

Council instructed assistant clerk, George Forquer, to send a bill to the Commercial Motor Freight Co. Columbus, for $50 for damage to the traffic light on N. Long St.

Madison Twp. Man Files Suit For Return of Real Estate

Fred LM Codner, Madison Twp., recently filed suit in the Pickaway County Clerk of Courts' office asking the court to rescind a deed and return his home to him.

Named as defendants in the suit were Kenneth P. Welch, his wife, Sophie E., and the Peoples Bank Co., Canal Winchester.

According to Codner's petition, he owned 1.94 acres of land in Madison Twp. upon which he had constructed a modern house. He said purchase of the real estate cost him most of his $18,000 life savings.

The 73-year-old Codner said that in February, 1958 he entered an oral agreement with his nephew, Welch, and Welch's wife, to deed her one-half interest in his real estate in consideration for the defendants to provide him a home, do his laundry, prepare his meals and other necessities.

• • •

HE SAID both parties agreed that the real estate needed improvements, including a garage, but there was need to borrow the money. Codner said he was forced to deed the other half of his property to Welch before he would agree to execute a note and mortgage.

For this consideration, Codner said the Welchs agreed to reserve him a life estate and pay all his medical and hospital expenses even if it meant mortgaging their property.

Codner said a promisory note for $5,000 was executed on July 12, 1958 with the People Bank Co. He said the defendants agreed to make all payments on the note, pay all property taxes and maintain adequate insurance on the home.

His petition stated that $3,000 went for improvement of the home and the other $2,000 was spent or still is in the possession of the Welch's.

The Welchs moved in with Codner in September, 1958 along with their daughter, Carol Brown, and grandchild, Patricia Welch.

He said that once moved in, the defendants' treatment of him caused his health to decline. He said they cursed him, refused to eat food he prepared for them, denied him any furniture except one chair and his bedroom fixtures.

• • •

THAT ALTHOUGH he bought most of the food he was forced to prepare his own meals, was forced to keep his food in a refrigerator in the basement and Mrs. Welch and her daughter constantly ridiculed him and threatened him bodily harm.

He said he so feared for his safety that he locked his bedroom door at night and on several occasions, Mrs. Welch threatened to kill him.

Codner said he suffered a heart attack on February 16 and was confined to bed three days when the Welchs forced him to again prepare his own meals, although his doctor directed him not to climb up and down stairs.

He said that due to mistreatment and concern for his safety he suffered a severe heart attack on March 26 and was confined to a hospital. He stated he now is convalescing in the home of a brother.

By reason of the Welchs misconduct, abuse and neglect and complete failure to live up to their obligations, he asked the court to void the deed and he be granted complete possession and ownership of the real estate.

The Peoples Bank denied knowledge of Codner's alleged facts and asked the court to protect its mortgage. It is represented by Stevenson and Stevenson, a Columbus legal firm.

The Welchs, represented by George Young and Tom A. Renick, answered the suit, stating they feel the case will be decided on a question of fraud, mistake or failure of consideration. J. W. Adkins represents Codner.

Stock Mart Quiet for 2nd Session

NEW YORK (AP) — A mixed pattern ruled in the stock market today as activity slackened for the second straight session.

Scattered gains and losses, mostly small, were recorded in rails, oils, airlines and drugs.

Radio Corp. ran up more than 1 point, recovering some of its recent loss. Raytheon also advanced but for the most part electronics displayed no fireworks.

Recent trading favorites came in for some profit taking. Bulova dropped 1 point as traders sold on the good news of favorable earnings. Universal Match was off a small fraction.

Otis elevator gained 3 on signing of an agreement to manufacture automatic pinsetting machines for Bowl-Mor Co.

Brunswick tumbled nearly 3 and American Machine and Foundry 1½. They are both big pinsetting machine producers.

There was a 15,500 share block of Lily Tulip at 51, down 2¾. The stock subsequently recovered a small portion of this decline. A 10,000 share block of Bell & Howell moved at 52, down ⅝ but the stock later recovered.

Royal Dutch ran up nearly 1 point in the oil section but the rest of the stocks in this category were not able to continue with the previous session's little rally.

Rails and utilities were little changed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down .10 at 221.50 with industrials down .40, rails up .10 and utilities up .10.

Corporate bonds were lower in dull trading.

airplanes accurate position fixes in any weather, day or night, anywhere in the world.

Two or three more test transits are scheduled for launching before the system becomes operational, probably in 1962. Then, four of these space lighthouses will whirl about the earth in evenly spaced orbits. They will radio a constant stream of information to be translated by navigators into longitude and latitude.

They are expected to provide accurate fixes within one-tenth of a mile. Present navigation aids give position fixes of half a mile at best and are dependent on weather.

The Defense Department has given high military priority to the Transit program because of its importance to Polaris missile submarines. By extending a whip antenna above the ocean surface, these nuclear subs will be able to obtain a position reading from the nearest Transit. This information would be vital in plotting missile trajectories.

Primary mission of the piggy back satellite was to measure various types of radiation in the ionosphere, an electrified belt extending from 35 miles to several hundred miles above the earth.

County Court Dismisses Suit

The Pickaway County Common Pleas Court Saturday dismissed the case of Mrs. Edward E. Whitley vs. the Ohio Bureau of Workman's Compensation.

The court dismissed Mrs. Whitley's suit because she failed to plead within 15 days from the filing of a court order on January 27.

Mrs. Whitley, widow of Edward Earl, appealed a decision of the Workmen's Compensation Bureau which disallowed her claim.

She said her husband was injured while working at the Container Corporation of America's local plant and suffered pain until his death.

Faces Grand Jury On Weapons Count

Neff denied the charge. He was placed under $500 bond.

Time for Freedom School

Are the various major agencies of the federal government so loosely coordinated as to endanger national security? If so, what is the solution? These two questions are the primary reason for one of the Senate's investigations of the U—2 plane interception by Russia.

A special subcommittee set up nearly a year ago to study the channels of communication between policy-making sections of the government has turned its attention to an apparent lack of coordination between the Pentagon, the State Department and intelligence agencies.

There has been little domestic criticism of the administration's decision to make photographic flights over Russia. The confusion with which the revelation was acknowledged in Washington, however, has led many observers to question whether the right hand of government knows what the left is doing.

Government red tape and devious routes of communication long have been the subject of humorous derision, but perhaps the time has come to stop joking and bring the machinery back under one roof. Lack of coordination is most noticeable within the executive branch, although there are tests of strength occasionally between the White House, Congress and the Supreme Court.

Congress is expected to become increasingly critical of the wide seperation of contact between the State Department and the Pentagon, the two departments most widely concerned with coordinating U. S. and allied support in the cold war. The State and Defense Departments traditionally have been the most important executive branches, but their importance to the future of the nation and the world has never been greater.

Both Robert Lovett, a former secretary of defense, and George Kennan, former ambassador to Russia, have testified before the subcommittee to the serious breach of communications which exists between these two departments. Both also pointed to the risks when the President and secretary of state personally handle U. S. negotiations with other countries, particularly on the touchy subjects now facing the world.

Revision of the top levels of executive structure was the solution voiced by both Kennan and Lovett, including the naming of a secretary of foreign affairs to act as intermediary between the President and secretary of state and foreign powers. This would permit final decisions on matters of great importance to be made in the relative tranquility of Washington instead of in the heat of diplomatic battle.

It has also been suggested that unification of the armed forces authorized by Congress shortly after World War II commence, that the Defense Department be subordinated to the State Department, and that the proposed secretary of foreign affairs preside over both. It is becoming obvious that growth of government is dictating a major shakeup in organization. How far the reorganization should go is of secondary importance to the conclusion that the nation cannot afford to imperil its existence because of discord, jealous rivalry and secrecy between members of the same team.

Office Desk Is a Biographer

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — An office desk is the silent biographer of the man who works at it.

Most desk drawers contain files dealing with the firm's business. But there is also usually a drawer in which the man who works at the desk keeps personal belongings.

Over the years the contents of this drawer tell by their mere mute presence the whole drama of his life—his hopes, his problems, his failures and his victories.

It contains the picture of a big-bosomed actress in a low-cut gown, a razor so he can shave at the office after work and not have to go all the way home to get ready for his date, three cubes of sugar, a sheaf of letters from girl friends and an invitation to a cocktail party.

It holds a picture of a sweet-faced young woman and two little girls in bathing suits, a packet of stomach mints, two packs of cigarettes, a cleaning rag to polish the top of his desk, and six sugar cubes—for coffee breaks.

When the man is 45, the desk drawer has much more to tell.

It holds a half-empty box of aspirin tablets, two rolls of stomach mints, four packages of cigarettes, nine match packets, a bottle of antacid pills, a cleaning rag, and 12 sugar cubes.

It has a dozen kinds of pills, capsules, tablets and bottled medicines. There are two pipes, a pouch of tobacco, and a book on "How to Give up Cigarette Smoking."

There are letters from his wife who is visiting their first grandchild, letters from old friends trying to borrow money, a letter from the bank congratulating him on finally paying off the mortgage on his home and two notes from his boss bawling him out for indecision in settling a business matter.

At the bottom of the boss's notes the man has scribbled defiantly: "Who the hell does he think he is? I was running this job when he was in kneepants!"

Naturally the cleaning rag is still there—and 24 sugar cubes.

Slowly, thoughtfully, the man arises tiredly, takes out the desk drawer and empties its entire contents into a wastebasket. He takes the cleaning rag, polishes the drawer, puts it back into the desk, tosses the time-soiled rag into the wastebasket.

He sits at the desk for a long moment, running his hand over its smooth top, then flicks away a last fleck of dust. He gets up, puts on his hat and coat and out the door forever.

And the desk stands ready and waiting to begin the long chronicle of another man's life in the office.

Latin Treaty Protects Us

By George Sokolsky

Cuba has put itself, under Fidel Castro, in the position of menacing the United States on a much greater scale than is to be measured by the size and significance of the island.

The realistic peril to the United States is that when Khrushchev visits Cuba, a mutual security pact will be agreed upon between Cuba and Soviet Russia. That, in effect, puts Soviet Russia on our door-step and would mean that Cuba would become part of the Soviet Universal State.

Under such a pact, Russia could establish submarine bases, military airfields and rocket pads in Cuba. This may influence other nations in Latin America.

Of course, under the Monroe Doctrine and the Platt Amendments that would have been impossible. The United States would have acted immediately to protect this country from such a disaster. We revoked these fundamentals of American policy, but we are not left helpless.

The Organization of American States (OAS) has the authority to move into Cuba to save that country from Communism. The Caracas 1954 Declaration, in connection with Article 6 of the Rio Pact, reads as follows:

". . . the domination or the control of the political institutions of any American State by the international Communist movement extending to this hemisphere a political system of an extra-continental Power would constitute a threat to the sovereignty and political independence of the American States, endangering the peace of America, and would call for consultation and appropriate action in accordance with existing treaties."

The resolution recommended that each Government should take measures to force disclosure of the identity, activities, and sources of funds of those who were spreading propaganda for international Communism or acting as its agent, and that all Governments should exchange information to strengthen the campaign against Communism.

The resolution ended with the statement that is was "designed to protect and not to impair the inalienable right of each American State freely to choose its own form of government and economic system and to live its own social and cultural life."

In a word, the OAS can move to prevent the infiltration of any Latin American country by Communism. It is believed by some Latin American experts that if a free, internationally protected election were held in Cuba today, Castro could not be elected, particularly if the Cubans who have left that country during the Castro regime, returned to it to vote. Fidel Castro's popularity is on the wane and Khrushchev is coming to Cuba to bolster it.

There is another factor in this situation. Russia has long been annoyed that the United States and Turkey and Iran have mutual security pacts. As a matter of fact, Turkey and Iran are old allies of ours and have withstood Soviet efforts to infiltrate and to conquer them. Soviet Russia managed to take Iraq out of this group of nations, but Turkey and Iran have stood firm.

It could be — and this is speculative but quite within the range of possibility — that Soviet Russia is engaging upon this Cuban gambit with the object of bringing pressure upon the United States to relinquish its relationship with Turkey and Iran. Instead of the United States containing Soviet Russia according to the Truman Doctrine, Soviet Russia is now containing the United States.

This is a further extension of the Stalinist policy which Khrushchev has consistently opposed. From all that Khrushchev said and did prior to the Paris Summit fiasco, it is clear that he believed in peaceful co-existence as a successful device for establishing Marxism in the Western world.

The evidence is that whereas Stalin was successful in Eastern Europe and in China, Khrushchev was making enormous and ominous progress in Western Europe and the United States. He might have succeeded in lulling us into an easy apathy toward Soviet Russia and even Red China. But he can never change his position again, for we cannot trust him.

The Stalinists have regarded Khrushchev's methods as anti-Marxist - Leninist and this opposition to him has apparently prevailed. If by July 13, when the Communist Party meets in Moscow, Khrushchev cannot overcome this Stalinist opposition, it must be expected that the next serious step against the United States will be in Cuba and it will come with Kruushchev's visit tothat country.

The Organization of American States has the responsibility of immediate action not to wait until it is too late and nothing can be done short of a general war. If the OAS is incapable of performing in this obvious crisis, then the United States ought to go it alone. We cannot risk our security by remaining subservient to unworkable pacts.

The redwing is an American blackbird; the males have a scarlet patch on the wing.

Some Ills Tough to Find

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

There are so many diseases that are incurable — with our present knowledge — that we sometimes tend to regard curable diseases as not really dangerous.

Pyelonephritis is an example. I doubt whether many of you have ever heard of it. Yet it has been a leading cause of death from renal failure throughout history.

It is a kidney disease. And it is curable. The trouble is, however, that it is so difficult to detect.

It's estimated that about 20 to 25 per cent of the patients who die as a result of pyelonephritis are correctly diagnosed only when an autopsy is performed. By that time a correct diagnosis doesn't do them much good.

Pyelonephritis is an infection caused by bacteria entering the kidney through the blood or lymph systems or through the urinary tract itself.

The bacteria eventually destroy the million tiny nephrons which select, store and discard the various chemicals and vitamins needed to maintain body health.

The disease occurs most frequently in girls up to 12 years of age and in women between 25 and 70. Most women seem to have a good natural defense against it until they begin bearing children.

It also strikes boys up to the age of six and men over 45.

Symptoms of pyelonephritis include fever, general malaise, backache, increased urinary frequency, pain at the conclusion of urination and sometimes the presence of small amounts of blood in the urine.

However, one doctor reported that about 60 per cent of the pyelonephritis patients studied at his hospital had none of these symptoms.

If we can detect the condition we usually can remedy it with minor surgery. New diagnostic techniques are being developed. I mentioned one, the use of radioactive tracers, in a recent column on medical advances.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The picture of the State Department which emerges from senatorial quizzing on the U2 spy plane and the Tokyo riots is more than just the poor judgment now admitted.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and his department showed a lack of attention to vital details and a failure to understand both human reactions and Communist tactics.

When the Central Intelligence Agency sent the U2 on its mission over Russia—just two weeks before the summit conference—it was taking a chance, since the plane might be downed and American spying exposed.

The result could have been guessed in human terms. Premier Nikita Khrushchev, who had been preaching good will toward President Eisenhower and the United States, would be outraged. And no wonder.

Such an incident would make him look like a sap before the whole Communist world. While he had been pumping up hope for the summit meeting, the United States was violating Soviet territory.

This goes far to explain his violent reaction when the plane was downed and the pilot captured. He wrecked the summit, called off Eisenhower's trip to Russia, and began a campaign of ridicule against him.

It might have been expected of the State Department—with the summit meeting so close—that it would have been on top of every detail involving Russian relations.

But Herter told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that neither he nor Eisenhower knew specifically of the disastrous spy flight although they had approved the spy program in general.

Eisenhower was to have gone on to Japan after his tour of Russia. There was good reason to believe that, even if he had a Russian triumph, he might have met with violence and riots in Tokyo.

Communists, laborites, neutralists and even some conservatives were opposed to the new American-Japanese defense treaty. There had been mounting demonstrations against it for more than a year.

This alone—since Eisenhower's safety might be endangered and American prestige damaged—would have been reason enough to call off his Tokyo trip once Khrushchev had canceled his Russian visit. It would have been based on the idea of taking no unnecessary chances.

When Vice President Richard M. Nixon made his Latin American trip in the early part of 1958—and ran into anti-American riots—Khrushchev had just become premier. He had not yet entered his love-America phase.

The Communists were blamed in big part for the anti-American riots against Nixon. That's understandable. The Communist world then was trying to embarrass the United States every way it could.

By the time Eisenhower made his Latin American trip this year, Khrushchev had visited him here, the summit meeting was just a few weeks away, and Khrushchev was soft-pedaling anti-Americanism.

It is probably more than accidental that Eisenhower, unlike Nixon, ran into almost no anti-Americanism from Latin American Communists. Moscow, because of the mood prevailing at the time, probably told them to go easy on Eisenhower.

So, if the summit were not a bust and Eisenhower made a triumphal tour of Russia, it could have been expected Moscow would tell Communists everywhere to pipe down when Eisenhower arrived, including Tokyo.

That was about the only reason the State Department should have had for thinking Eisenhower might not run into trouble in Japan. But that reason went out the window once Khrushchev turned on Eisenhower.

Instead, the State Department could have realized the year-long history of Tokyo riots was a signal to expect more of the same when Eisenhower arrived, particularly since now Moscow could be expected to stir up the Japanese Communists against him.

All these obvious things apparently failed to penetrate the State Department thinking.

Time for Freedom School

Are the various major agencies of the federal government so loosely coordinated as to endanger national security? If so, what is the solution? These two questions are the primary reason for one of the Senate's investigations of the U—2 plane interception by Russia.

A special subcommittee set up nearly a year ago to study the channels of communication between policy-making sections of the government has turned its attention to an apparent lack of coordination between the Pentagon, the State Department and intelligence agencies.

There has been little domestic criticism of the administration's decision to make photographic flights over Russia. The confusion with which the revelation was acknowledged in Washington, however, has led many observers to question whether the right hand of government knows what the left is doing.

Government red tape and devious routes of communication long have been the subject of humorous derision, but perhaps the time has come to stop joking and bring the machinery back under one roof. Lack of coordination is most noticeable within the executive branch, although there are tests of strength occasionally between the White House, Congress and the Supreme Court.

Congress is expected to become increasingly critical of the wide seperation of contact between the State Department and the Pentagon, the two departments most widely concerned with coordinating U. S. and allied support jn the cold war. The State and Defense Departments traditionally have been the most important executive branches, but their importance to the future of the nation and the world has never been greater.

Both Robert Lovett, a former secretary of defense, and George Kennan, former ambassador to Russia, have testified before the subcommittee to the serious breach of communications which exists between these two departments. Both also pointed to the risks when the President and secretary of state personally handle U. S. negotiations with other countries, particularly on the touchy subjects now facing the world.

Revision of the top levels of executive structure was the solution voiced by both Kennan and Lovett, including the naming of a secretary of foreign affairs to act as intermediary between the President and secretary of state and foreign powers. This would permit final decisions on matters of great importance to be made in the relative tranquility of Washington instead of in the heat of diplomatic battle.

It has also been suggested that unification of the armed forces authorized by Congress shortly after World War II commence, that the Defense Department be subordinated to the State Department, and that the proposed secretary of foreign affairs preside over both. It is becoming obvious that growth of government is dictating a major shakeup in organization. How far the reorganization should go is of secondary importance to the conclusion that the nation cannot afford to imperil its existence because of discord, jealous rivalry and secrecy between members of the same team.

Office Desk Is a Biographer

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — An office desk is the silent biographer of the man who works at it.

Most desk drawers contain files dealing with the firm's business. But there is also usually a drawer in which the man who works at the desk keeps personal belongings.

Over the years the contents of this drawer tell by their mere mute presence the whole drama of his life—his hopes, his problems, his failures and his victories.

It contains the picture of a big-bosomed actress in a low-cut gown, a razor so he can shave at the office after work and not have to go all the way home to get ready for his date, three cubes of sugar, a sheaf of letters from girl friends and an invitation to a cocktail party.

It holds a picture of a sweet-faced young woman and two little girls in bathing suits, a packet of stomach mints, two packs of cigarettes, a cleaning rag to polish the top of his desk, and six sugar cubes—for coffee breaks.

When the man is 45, the desk drawer has much more to tell.

It holds a half-empty box of aspirin tablets, two rolls of stomach mints, four packages of cigarettes, nine match packets, a bottle of antacid pills, a cleaning rag, and 12 sugar cubes.

It has a dozen kinds of pills, capsules, tablets and bottled medicines. There are two pipes, a pouch of tobacco, and a book on "How to Give up Cigarette Smoking."

There are letters from his wife who is visiting their first grandchild, letters from old friends trying to borrow money, a letter from the bank congratulating him on finally paying off the mortgage on his home and two notes from his boss bawling him out for indecision in settling a business matter.

At the bottom of the boss's notes the man has scribbled defiantly: "Who the hell does he think he is? I was running this job when he was in kneepants!"

Naturally the cleaning rag is still there—and 24 sugar cubes.

When the man reaches 65, the desk drawer is stuffed with the debris of 40 years.

Slowly, thoughtfully, the man arises tiredly, takes out the desk drawer and empties its entire contents into a wastebasket. He takes the cleaning rag, polishes the drawer, puts it back into the desk, tosses the time-soiled rag into the wastebasket.

He sits at the desk for a long moment, running his hand over its smooth top, then flicks away a last fleck of dust. He gets up, puts on his hat and coat and out the door forever.

And the desk stands ready and waiting to begin the long chronicle of another man's life in the office.

Latin Treaty Protects Us

By George Sokolsky

Cuba has put itself, under Fidel Castro, in the position of menacing the United States on a much greater scale than is to be measured by the size and significance of the island.

The realistic peril to the United States is that when Khrushchev visits Cuba, a mutual security pact will be agreed upon between Cuba and Soviet Russia. That, in effect, puts Soviet Russia on our door-step and would mean that Cuba would become part of the Soviet Universal State.

Under such a pact, Russia could establish submarine bases, military airfields and rocket pads in Cuba. This may influence other nations in Latin America.

Of course, under the Monroe Doctrine and the Platt Amendments that would have been impossible. The United States would have acted immediately to protect this country from such a disaster. We revoked these fundamentals of American policy, but we are not left helpless.

The Organization of American States (OAS) has the authority to move into Cuba to save that country from Communism. The Caracas 1954 Declaration, in connection with Article 6 of the Rio Pact, reads as follows:

". . . the domination or the control of the political institutions of any American State by the international Communist movement extending to this hemisphere a political system of an extra-continental Power would constitute a threat to the sovereignty and political independence of the American States, endangering the peace of America, and would call for consultation and appropriate action in accordance with existing treaties."

The resolution recommended that each Government should take measures to force disclosure of the identity, activities, and sources of funds of those who were spreading propaganda for international Communism or acting as its agent, and that all Governments should exchange information to strengthen the campaign against Communism.

The resolution ended with the statement that is was "designed to protect and not to impair the inalienable right of each American State freely to choose its own form of government and economic system and to live its own social and cultural life."

In a word, the OAS can move to prevent the infiltration of any Latin American country by Communism. It is believed by some Latin American experts that if a free, internationally protected election were held in Cuba today, Castro could not be elected, particularly if the Cubans who have left that country during the Castro regime, returned to it to vote. Fidel Castro's popularity is on the wane and Khrushchev is coming to Cuba to bolster it.

There is another factor in this situation. Russia has long been annoyed that the United States and Turkey and Iran have mutual security pacts. As a matter of fact, Turkey and Iran are old allies of ours and have withstood Soviet efforts to infiltrate and to conquer them. Soviet Russia managed to take Iraq out of this group of nations, but Turkey and Iran have stood firm.

It could be — and this is speculative but quite within the range of possibility — that Soviet Russia is engaging upon this Cuban gambit with the object of bringing pressure upon the United States to relinquish its relationship with Turkey and Iran. Instead of the United States containing Soviet Russia according to the Truman Doctrine, Soviet Russia is now containing the United States.

This is a further extension of the Stalinist policy which Khrushchev has consistently opposed. From all that Khrushchev said and did prior to the Paris Summit fiasco, it is clear that he believed in peaceful co-existence as a successful device for establishing Marxism in the Western world.

The evidence is that whereas Stalin was successful in Eastern Europe and in China, Khrushchev was making enormous and ominous progress in Western Europe and the United States. He might have succeeded in lulling us into an easy apathy toward Soviet Russia and even Red China. But he can never change his position again, for we cannot trust him.

The Stalinists have regarded Khrushchev's methods as anti-Marxist - Leninist and this opposition to him has apparently prevailed. If by July 13, when the Communist Party meets in Moscow, Khrushchev cannot overcome this Stalinist opposition, it must be expected that the next serious step against the United States will be in Cuba and it will come with Kruushchev's visit tothat country.

The Organization of American States has the responsibility of immediate action not to wait until it is too late and nothing can be done short of a general war. If the OAS is incapable of performing in this obvious crisis, then the United States ought to go it alone. We cannot risk our security by remaining subservient to unworkable pacts.

The redwing is an American blackbird; the males have a scarlet patch on the wing.

Some Ills Tough to Find

By Herman N. Bundesen, M.D.

There are so many diseases that are incurable — with our present knowledge — that we sometimes tend to regard curable diseases as not really dangerous.

Pyelonephritis is an example. I doubt whether many of you have ever heard of it. Yet it has been a leading cause of death from renal failure throughout history.

It is a kidney disease. And it is curable. The trouble is, however, that it is so difficult to detect.

It's estimated that about 20 to 25 per cent of the patients who die as a result of pyelonephritis are correctly diagnosed only when an autopsy is performed. By that time a correct diagnosis doesn't do them much good.

Pyelonephritis is an infection caused by bacteria entering the kidney through the blood or lymph systems or through the urinary tract itself.

The bacteria eventually destroy the million tiny nephrons which select, store and discard the various chemicals and vitamins needed to maintain body health.

The disease occurs most frequently in girls up to 12 years of age and in women between 25 and 70. Most women seem to have a good natural defense against it until they begin bearing children.

It also strikes boys up to the age of six and men over 45.

Symptoms of pyelonephritis include fever, general malaise, backache, increased urinary frequency, pain at the conclusion of urination and sometimes the presence of small amounts of blood in the urine.

However, one doctor reported that about 60 per cent of the pyelonephritis patients studied at his hospital had none of these symptoms.

If we can detect the condition we usually can remedy it with minor surgery. New diagnostic techniques are being developed. I mentioned one, the use of radioactive tracers, in a recent column on medical advances.

The World Today

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON (AP) — The picture of the State Department which emerges from senatorial quizzing on the U2 spy plane and the Tokyo riots is more than just the poor judgment now admitted.

Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and his department showed a lack of attention to vital details and a failure to understand both human reactions and Communist tactics.

When the Central Intelligence Agency sent the U2 on its mission over Russia—just two weeks before the summit conference—it was taking a chance, since the plane might be downed and American spying exposed.

The result could have been guessed in human terms. Premier Nikita Khrushchev, who had been preaching good will toward President Eisenhower and the United States, would be outraged. And no wonder.

Such an incident would make him look like a sap before the whole Communist world. While he had been pumping up hope for the summit meeting, the United States was violating Soviet territory.

This goes far to explain his violent reaction when the plane was downed and the pilot captured. He wrecked the summit, called off Eisenhower's trip to Russia, and began a campaign of ridicule against him.

It might have been expected of the State Department—with the summit meeting so close—that it would have been on top of every detail involving Russian relations.

But Herter told the Senate Foreign Relations committee that neither he nor Eisenhower knew specifically of the disastrous spy flight although they had approved the spy program in general.

Eisenhower was to have gone on to Japan after his tour of Russia. There was good reason to believe that, even if he had a Russian triumph, he might have met with violence and riots in Tokyo.

Communists, laborites, neutralists and even some conservatives were opposed to the new American-Japanese defense treaty. There had been mounting demonstrations against it for more than a year.

This alone—since Eisenhower's safety might be endangered and American prestige damaged—would have been reason enough to call off his Tokyo trip once Khrushchev had canceled his Russian visit. It would have been based on the idea of taking no unnecessary chances.

When Vice President Richard M. Nixon made his Latin American trip in the early part of 1958—and ran into anti-American riots—Khrushchev had just become premier. He had not yet entered his love-America phase.

The Communists were blamed in big part for the anti-American riots against Nixon. That's understandable. The Communist world then was trying to embarrass the United States every way it could.

By the time Eisenhower made his Latin American trip this year, Khrushchev had visited him here, the summit meeting was just a few weeks away, and Khrushchev was soft-pedaling anti-Americanism.

It is probably more than accidental that Eisenhower, unlike Nixon, ran into almost no anti-Americanism from Latin American Communists. Moscow, because of the mood prevailing at the time, probably told them to go easy on Eisenhower.

So, if the summit were not a bust and Eisenhower made a triumphal tour of Russia, it could have been expected Moscow would tell Communists everywhere to pipe down when Eisenhower arrived, including Tokyo.

That was about the only reason the State Department should have had for thinking Eisenhower might not run into trouble in Japan. But that reason went out the window once Khrushchev turned on Eisenhower.

Instead, the State Department could have realized the year-long history of Tokyo riots was a signal to expect more of the same when Eisenhower arrived, particularly since now Moscow could be expected to stir up the Japanese Communists against him.

All these obvious things apparently failed to penetrate the State Department thinking.

FREE AFTER 50 YEARS IN PRISON—Frank Novak, 78, sits with his landlady in Minneapolis, Minn., where, though unable to see, he is learning about the "outside" again after spending the last 50 years in the state prison at Stillwater. Landlady is Mrs. Ragna Taylor. Novak was convicted of murder in 1910. Some Minneapolis men are supporting him.

Carrots Get Dressed-Up With Maltaise Sauce

CARROTS TASTE elegant when they are served with Maltaise Sauce — made like Hollandaise with the addition of orange juice and rind.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

No doubt about it, you can treat vegetables in such interesting ways that family and friends will gobble them up.

Take the carrot. Serve it with an elegant French sauce and it becomes positively glamorous.

The sauce? It's a variation of the classic Hollandaise that ought to be better known in this country. Called Maltaise, it adds orange juice and rind to the basic mixture and achieves delightful flavor.

One direction for the sauce intrigues us. The late Louis Diat, who was chef of New York's Ritz-Carlton Hotel, said that Maltaise Sauce should be pink and added a few drops of red food coloring. We did just that and found that coupled with the carrots it achieves a notable effect.

France's famous gastronomic dictionary, Larousse, gets even more exotic. You may, if suggests, substitute tangerine juice and rind for regular orange and then "Perfume" this sauce with a few drops of the orange-flavored liqueur, curacao.

Larousse says that Maltaise is used for "legumes bouillis" —boiled vegetables. Louis Diat served it with asparagus. We've tried it with both vegetables but—much as we revere Diat—we are convinced that Hollandaise is the superb sauce for asparagus while Maltaise is superlative with carrots.

This version of Maltaise Sauce is strictly up-to-date; it uses the new corn-oil margarine with fine results.

MALTAISE SAUCE

Ingredients: ¼ pound (1 stick) corn-oil margarine, 2 egg yolks, ½ teaspoon salt, cayenne pepper, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 tablespoons orange juice, 1 to 2 teaspoons grated orange rind.

Method: Divide margarine into sixths. Place egg yolks, salt, a dash of cayenne, lemon juice and orange juice over very hot (but not boiling) water until mixture is just heated; stir constantly with a whisk. Add one piece of the margarine, whisk constantly until it blends with other ingredients; add remaining pieces of margarine the same way. Add orange rind. Continue to cook, whisking constantly, until sauce is thick enough to mound slightly when dropped from whisk. Serve at once.

Note: For preparing sauce, use a double boiler or a 1-quart heat-resistant glass bowl set in a small skillet of very hot water.

SKILLET CARROTS

Ingredients: 8 to 10 medium-sized carrots, boiling water, 1 teaspoon sugar.

Method: Pare carrots; cut in half crosswise; cut into quarters lengthwise. Arrange in 2 layers in 10-inch skillet; add boiling water (to a depth of one inch) and sugar. (Sauce supplies enough salt.) Boil gently, covered, until just tender—about 12 minutes. Drain and serve with Maltaise Sauce.

Shining Light Holds Shower

A red letter meeting of the Shining Light Bible Class was held Thursday in the service center. Mrs. Carlos Brown, teacher, gave the grace at the carry-in-dinner for the Fellowship Meeting.

Several vases of summer flowers decorated the table. A vase of red roses was given to the president, Mrs. Myrtle Trimmer who is ill.

The business session of the meeting was called to order by Mrs. Clara DeLong. The meeting opened with the group singing and a prayer was given by Mrs. Ralph Long. Devotions were read by Mrs. Bertha Gildersleeve, who gave a talk on the 19 psalm, the nature psalm. She concluded the meeting by reciting a "Recitation Roses".

Routine reports followed. The group decided to give $10 for the Camp Fund. The fund is to be added to by personal giving. Those on the July committee are: Mrs. Clara Stevenson, Mrs. Phoebe Brown and Mrs. Flossie Grove.

The high light of the evening was a handkerchief shower given by the class to the three veteran officers; Mrs. Myrtle Trimmer, Mrs. Mida Neuding and Mrs. Phoebe Brown who have served for several years. Mrs. Trimmer was unable to be present.

A solo was given by Mrs. Isley Greeno, "Some Day He'll Make it Plain to Me". It was dedicated to Mrs. Trimmer. Another item was a talk given by Mrs. J. R. Kirkpatrick, Stoutsville, one of the former older members of the class. Her talk was based on friends and lifes memories. She illustrated it by two poems by Eddie Guest.

The concluding number on the program was the memorial service to those who have passed away, led by Mrs. Long assisted by Mrs. Stevenson. As each name was read a flower was departed in a vase. Mrs. Maude Noggle then read "Crossing The Bar" by Alfred Tennyson followed by a closing prayer.

Dear Abby...

By Abigail VanBuren

Buy Yourself Some Curves

DEAR ABBY: I am an intelligent, attractive, well-dressed girl of 20. Everyone says I have loads of personality. I am a huge success with everyone except the opposite sex. Some girl friends have told me I'd be more popular with men if I bought myself a few "curves" (I am 29-25-33, am 5 ft. 5 and weigh 125.) I don't see where this kind of cheating would do me any good. If a man got interested in me for my "figure", I'd have to tell him before we were married that it was artificial. What should I do? Does that kind of dishonesty pay?

"STRAIGHT"

DEAR "STRAIGHT": Many of your "straight up and down" sisters buy "curves" because they want to look better in their clothes—and it is not a matter of baiting their hooks with sponge rubber. It's no more "dishonest" than using artificial color on your cheeks and lips or putting an artificial curl in your hair. All's fair in love and war, and the war is on!

DEAR ABBY: I know a lady motorman who has so much electricity in her that when she takes her clothes off the sparks start to fly all over. I would like to know if there is any danger of her catching fire.

CLOSE FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: No danger—unless she has a conductor.

DEAR ABBY: Don't adults with young children answer the telephone themselves any more? I am in business and use the telephone a great deal. And I am sick and tired of talking "baby talk" with some three-year-old who has answered the phone for "Mummy" and wants to play guessing games with me.

This morning I asked a child whose mother was down in the basement washing to please call her mother to the phone. Apparently the child was detoured on the way and forgot all about it. I waited on the line fully 15 minutes, then hung up. I couldn't call back because her receiver was off the hook half the day. I think children are cute—but not on the telephone.

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: I agree with you. And in this connection, now that we can dial long distance directly, many children have accidentally made some very costly long-distance calls while playing with telephones. I recommend toy telephones for children.

DEAR ABBY: You can tell 24-year-old "Miss L" that the 52-year-old "bachelor" she is running around with has a wife and children. Furthermore, there will be no divorce in this family. My husband's name belongs to my children and me. "Miss L" can expect nothing but ultimate disgrace and possibly a child without a name. His name goes with this family—and so does his income.

"A'S WIFE"

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT:

Better Health Through Knowledge

"Low Calorie" Ice Cream

- Night Kidney
- Tracheotomy

Q. What is the calorie content of "low-calorie" ice cream?

A. According to an editorial in a widely read medical journal, the calorie content of special ice creams is not too different from that of ordinary ice cream. Synthetically sweetened ice cream has 176 calories per serving. Special ice cream for reducing diets and for diabetics has 133 calories per serving.

Q. Will you please explain the term "two pyelonephrisis, night kidney"? Is medicine necessary?

A. Our guess is that the reader is referring to some condition involving both kidneys which makes frequent trips to the bathroom necessary. Pyelonephritis (note spelling) is, of course, a definite and meaningful medical term. Simply stated, pyelonephritis means infection of the kidney. The germs that cause the trouble may reach the kidney during the course of a blood stream infection or as a result of obstruction of the urinary system. Symptoms of pyelonephritis include chills, fever, vomiting, and sweating. There may be severe pain and tenderness or merely a dull ache in the kidney region. Most early kidney infections can be successfully treated with drugs.

Q. What is the operation called where a hole is made in the neck to help a person breathe? Does it leave a large scar?

A. The operation is called a tracheotomy (pronounced tra-kiot' e-mi). It is generally performed as a life-saving measure when the upper windpipe (trachea) becomes blocked. There is some scarring but this is a small price to pay to ward off almost certain death from lack of air. Incidentally, the possibility of relieving obstruction of the upper breathing tract by tracheotomy was considered by ancient physicians. However, the first authentic operation was probably performed by a Dr. Brassavola in 1546. Until modern times tracheotomy was considered a hazardous procedure and was rarely attempted. Today, doctors are so skilled that a tracheotomy is considered whenever breathing is seriously hampered by obstruction of the upper windpipe.

Buy Yourself Some Curves

DEAR ABBY: I am an intelligent, attractive, well-dressed girl of 20. Everyone says I have loads of personality. I am a huge success with everyone except the opposite sex. Some girl friends have told me I'd be more popular with men if I bought myself a few "curves" (I am 29-25-33, am 5 ft. 5 and weigh 125.) I don't see where this kind of cheating would do me any good. If a man got interested in me for my "figure", I'd have to tell him before we were married that it was artificial. What should I do? Does that kind of dishonesty pay?

"STRAIGHT"

DEAR "STRAIGHT": Many of your "straight up and down" sisters buy "curves" because they want to look better in their clothes—and it is not a matter of baiting their hooks with sponge rubber. It's no more "dishonest" than using artificial color on your cheeks and lips or putting an artificial curl in your hair. All's fair in love and war, and the war is on!

DEAR ABBY: I know a lady motorman who has so much electricity in her that when she takes her clothes off the sparks start to fly all over. I would like to know if there is any danger of her catching fire.

CLOSE FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: No danger—unless she has a conductor.

DEAR ABBY: Don't adults with young children answer the telephone themselves any more? I am in business and use the telephone a great deal. And I am sick and tired of talking "baby talk" with some three-year-old who has answered the phone for "Mummy" and wants to play guessing games with me.

This morning I asked a child whose mother was down in the basement washing to please call her mother to the phone. Apparently the child was detoured on the way and forgot all about it. I waited on the line fully 15 minutes, then hung up. I couldn't call back because her receiver was off the hook half the day. I think children are cute—but not on the telephone.

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: I agree with you. And in this connection, now that we can dial long distance directly, many children have accidentally made some very costly long-distance calls while playing with telephones. I recommend toy telephones for children.

DEAR ABBY: You can tell 24-year-old "Miss L" that the 52-year-old "bachelor" she is running around with has a wife and children. Furthermore, there will be no divorce in this family. My husband's name belongs to my children and me. "Miss L" can expect nothing but ultimate disgrace and possibly a child without a name. His name goes with this family—and so does his income.

"A'S WIFE"

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT:

Better Health Through Knowledge

"Low Calorie" Ice Cream

- Night Kidney
- Tracheotomy

Q. What is the calorie content of "low-calorie" ice cream?

A. According to an editorial in a widely read medical journal, the calorie content of special ice creams is not too different from that of ordinary ice cream. Synthetically sweetened ice cream has 176 calories per serving. Special ice cream for reducing diets and for diabetics has 133 calories per serving.

Q. Will you please explain the term "two pyelonephrisis, night kidney"? Is medicine necessary?

A. Our guess is that the reader is referring to some condition involving both kidneys which makes frequent trips to the bathroom necessary. Pyelonephritis (note spelling) is, of course, a definite and meaningful medical term. Simply stated, pyelonephritis means infection of the kidney. The germs that cause the trouble may reach the kidney during the course of a blood stream infection or as a result of obstruction of the urinary system. Symptoms of pyelonephritis include chills, fever, vomiting, and sweating. There may be severe pain and tenderness or merely a dull ache in the kidney region. Most early kidney infections can be successfully treated with drugs.

Q. What is the operation called where a hole is made in the neck to help a person breathe? Does it leave a large scar?

A. The operation is called a tracheotomy (pronounced tra-kiot' e-mi). It is generally performed as a life-saving measure when the upper windpipe (trachea) becomes blocked. There is some scarring but this is a small price to pay to ward off almost certain death from lack of air. Incidentally, the possibility of relieving obstruction of the upper breathing tract by tracheotomy was considered by ancient physicians. However, the first authentic operation was probably performed by a Dr. Brassavola in 1546. Until modern times tracheotomy was considered a hazardous procedure and was rarely attempted. Today, doctors are so skilled that a tracheotomy is considered whenever breathing is seriously hampered by obstruction of the upper windpipe.

Some College Space Still Is Available

Space is still available in Ohio colleges for qualified Circleville boys and girls who have not yet completed admission for this autumn term.

This is the report of the Ohio Foundation of Independent Colleges, following a survey of its members in all parts of Ohio. In order to accept more freshmen, schools with building programs have been hastening completion of new dormitories.

Some of the colleges with dormitories already filled still have classroom space for more students who can commute from home or make arrangements for their own housing with friends or relatives in the college community, the survey shows.

Among the OFIC colleges still having dormitory space available, at last report, are:

Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, 30 men, Capital University, Columbus, 40 men, Defiance College, Defiance, 25 men, 35 women, Findlay College, Findlay, 25 men, 75 women, Heidelberg College, Tiffin, 19 men, Marietta College, Marietta, 30 men, Mt. Union College, Alliance, 25 men.

IN ADDITION, the colleges report these spaces still available for "commuters" not requiring campus housing.

Baldwin-Wallace, 35 men, 20 women; Capital, 10 men; Defiance, 25 men, 15 women; Findlay, 75 men, 125 women; Heidelberg, 21 men, 6 women; Mt. Union, 15 men, 10 women; St. John, Cleveland, 30 women in elementary teacher education; St. Mary of the Springs, Columbus, 50 women.

Quackery Rated As Serious U.S. Health Problem

CINCINNATI (AP)—The U. S. commissioner of food and drugs says he thinks quackery is becoming one of America's most serious health problems.

Dr. George P. Larrick told the University of Cincinnati's annual Science Institute that he describes quackery as:

"The use of false information to promote worthless remedies and treatments for various ailments and conditions.

"There are many different kinds and degrees of quackery, but common to all is the fact that quackery pretends to be scientific."

He said his agents still find oft-disproved notions flourishing — such as the idea that electric current in the body could cure disease.

Dr. Larrick said "quackery is a very real danger to people who are led to neglect getting proper medical care."

How Future Business Looks

Money Steals Headlines During First Half of '60

Editor's Note —Business followed an uncertain course in the first half of 1960. Its outlook for the second half is discussed by Sam Dawson, AP business news analyst, in a three-part series. In this, the first, he takes up the role money and credit played and will play in business activity, stock and bond markets, home building and economic growth.

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—Money—or the lack of it—colored much of the thinking both private and public in the first half of the year. Tight or easier, dear or cheaper, flowing into more hands or slipping away in countless new ways, it was money that stole many of the headlines.

It made the news in the stock and bond markets. It is a political as well as a financial issue among the money managers in Washington—the Federal Reserve Board, the U. S. Treasury, the many in Congress who have strong ideas about its role in economic growth.

Money, tight or easy, is a factor in home building, small-business financing, and in your decision whether it's wiser to save or to spend.

At midyear there is something like a truce. Money isn't as tight, but it isn't really easy either. Individuals find it about as hard to come by, and perhaps a bit harder to hold onto.

Chances for more available credit and lower interest rates look good for the second half of the year. But not much more funds, not much easier terms.

Individuals are being promised plenty of money to finance their installment purchases, and more money that can be borrowed for mortgages. But interest charges on long-term projects are still sticking about as high as in the days of tightest money.

Business isn't demanding so much in loans as in the early days of the recovery from the 1958 recession—hence much of the ease in the short-term money market. But the banks say they are pretty well loaned up in relation to deposits and see no immediate reason to lower interest rates, even if the Federal Reserve Board did lower the charge on money it lends to them.

State and local agencies and corporations seeking long-term loans are finding more funds available now, but the interest costs are still high by the standards of a few years back. The Federal government is paying less for its short-term borrowing, but finding it hard to get takers for its long-term bonds.

Stock and bond prices have seesawed as investors compared their yields and tried to judge the chances of further inflation. Stocks enter the second half of the year yielding a bit more than at the first of 1960 because of the late winter shakeout of prices, while bonds yield less as their prices have risen.

Investors see little fear of further monetary inflation for a while. But they think the money managers would quickly return to tight money if a boom should start in the fall.

Dividend totals continue to rise. But the number of companies raising payments seems to be dwindling.

And the political battle over whether the country needs easier credit and greater growth, or sound money and stable prices will wax noisier, at least until after the election.

Drunk Arrested On Bridge Makes Legal History

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP)—The case of Carroll Mills made a curious kind of legal history today. He was fined $10 for being drunk, but it took a 12-page opinion and court decisions dating to the American Revolution to justify the fine.

Mills claimed Ohio lacked jurisdiction.

The judge held that East Liverpool police have a clear cut right to make arrests on the river opposite the city.

Wrote the judge:

"Conceding that the arrest was made in midaire rather than on the waters of the Ohio, the cities in this modern age have a right to legislate over air space over their territory."

Membership on 2 Boards Of Education Ruled Out

Neutrals Said Boon In Labor Disputes

WASHINGTON (AP)—The widespread system of letting outside neutrals judge labor-management grievances now has been given a good deal more finality and speed.

The Supreme Court held in a series of cases Monday that courts should steer clear of reviewing merits of grievances when an employer and union have agreed such complaints should be decided by arbitration.

The high court said in effect the courts have no business assuming an arbitrator's function. Even if a complaint is frivolous, the court said, its disposition is up to the arbitrator, not the courts.

Union spokesmen said the rulings give the arbitration process the broadest possible scope and a finality largely free from time-consuming court delays.

Federal Boat Law Ruling Is Sought

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Legal officers of five states along the Ohio River want a federal court to spell the meaning of two words in a federal boat licensing law.

The officials differ over meaning of the phrase "principal use" in terms of boating on the river. They decided Monday to let the court resolve what they called a "five state hullabaloo."

The controversy grows out of a 1958 federal law which requires all boats to be licensed "in the state in which they are principally used."

States on the north side of the river—Illinois, Indiana and Ohio—contend principal use means where the boat is docked. Kentucky and West Virginia, on the south side, claim it means where the boat travels on the river.

The boundaries of Kentucky and West Virginia extend to the low water mark on the north side of the river.

Both states opposed a decision by the group to ask a federal court also to amend the 1958 act. They said they prefer licensing to be done on the basis of where a person uses his boat, not where he lives.

Kentucky Atty. Gen. John B. Breckinridge said his state would lose about $300,000 a year in license fees if the law is changed.

Light, summer diets provide a minimal vitamin intake, and excessive fluids and perspiration can "wash out" important B complex vitamins. You're probably more active, too, in this "on-the-go" season, and this means increased vitamin requirements to keep your energy up to par. Garden Gossip

Circleville may not be the rose capitol of the world but if you had been scouting around with the garden editor at rose time you'd have thought it a likely candidate.

The roses were amazing! It was almost unbelievable that so many gardens could have had such beautifully grown roses. They were to be found everywhere. Not just in the gardens of the town's rosarians, but everywhere!

We visited the Harold Weaver rose garden at Basil on June 9. Weaver probably has more rose trophies than anybody in Ohio, perhaps as many as anybody in the United States.

He has won almost every trophy there is, at one time or another.

He grows to show. He had many of his rose beds protected by a canopy of saran (we understood him to say) screen. This is to prevent hail from ruining his flowers at show time. Sure enough, there was a hail storm in Basil just the week before.

Weaver had very little mulch. His paths were "skinned". He has not had that first sign of disease or insect damage. He has only sprayed twice this season.

THIS COMES about because he has been careful for many years and has been so hygienic as a rose gardener that rose pests grew discouraged. He has the spray ready to use if necessary.

Harold Weaver is a test grower. He apparently gets a big buzz out of predicting the All-America roses for future years.

He's now testing a lavendar climbing rose.

Ruth Montelius thinks maybe its beginners luck but her roses this year have been beautiful. This is her second year at rose growing.

The Carl Reichelderfers at Tarlton have had extra fine roses this year. We drove past to see their barbecue summer house and the roses took our eye. The barbecue did too.

Mrs. Frances Chalfin has very lovely Madonna lilies and so many of them. She lives on Route 56.

We cannot get over the habit of going slowly past Dr. Joe Goeller's to see what's blooming. Joe's gone back on flower growing. He's put his flower garden into grass. But his Madonna lilies are still mighty beautiful.

Yvonne Drake has a beautiful specimen of ornamental garlic. It's Allium Aflatuense if we know our garlics. Yvonne also has an excellent selection of roses. Miss Drake lives at Route 1, Laurelville.

Mrs. Judson Beougher and Yvonne Drake attended the flower arrangement school at Lancaster this past Wednesday. Mrs. Beougher told Yvonne that anybody who was as flower-crazy as she was certainly ought to know the rudiments of arranging.

Mrs. Kelson Bower's five varieties of clematis are said to be simply beautiful.

CLEMATIS likes an alkaline soil. We ought to specialize in this lovely vine more then we do in Pickaway County.

When we saw that one of her arrangements at the recent flower show boasted tulips we just figured that the resourceful Mrs. Charles Thompson had invented a way to keep tulips fresh.

But that was not it. The Thompsons had just not gotten around to planting their tulip bulbs until January. So their "early tulips" bloomed in June.

Alice Thompson sent away for some atomic seeds. She is to report on the behavior of the plants. Strange things may take place. She may get a climbing petunia or a midget petunia or even a giant. She also has atomic marigolds. So far only the marigolds are up and they're behaving in a very normal fashion. Very disappointing!

Victor Ries wrote in his column that he had put his African violets outdoors for the summer. We were scandalized at such a bold move and have beentrying to find out if anybody in Pickaway County moves her violets outdoors.

Mrs. Leslie Karshner, Watt St., has a neighbor who has violets on the porch.

Victor Ries also wrote that he was old-fashioned enough to think that a garden editor ought to be a good gardener.

I agree, in theory.

As a matter of fact my own garden has declined in direct proportion to the number of years I've served as garden editor.

It's a cinch you can't gallop all over the county looking at everybody else's garden and still work in your own.

We all blush when a visitor arrives to look at my flowers.

My daughter-in-law saw somebody the other day who said she was trying hard to find time to come see my flowers. My daughter-in-law told her right quick-like not to come now but to come later on.

The way I figure, our garden will be best about Pumpkin Show time—and a very nice time to have a pretty garden.

The meanest thing a garden editor can do is to visit a garden about June 25. All the early summer things have bloomed and the annuals generally have not got a good start.

DOROTHY JONNES said she was going to scalp the garden editor. We mentioned she always had something of interest in her tinsy-weensy back yard. Well it just isn't true now. It's true in early spring.

Mrs. Russel Jones, Tarlton, has African violets in her front windows. These she has had for a good many years. She says she now pays very little attention to them.

We thought for a moment when we were in Tarlton that we were seeing some new red African violets in the Jones' window. But no, it was a vining relative of the African violet. They are very colorful and take the same treatment, we understand, as African violets.

We had a discussion the other day about whether to have a garden of continuous bloom or to specialize and have your bloom come all at once.

Personally we are for the one big bloom-time. Unless you are a master at organization you can "easy" kill yourself trying to maintain a border of continuous bloom. It means never ending labor.

We thing it's better to have a big blaze of flowers at one season, then sort of relax.

You don't have to give up completely on your flowers. Just have a few things to use for arrangements. After all arranging flowers does not call for a great quantity of flowers. But do have that special time of bloom.

Betty Jo was still trying to figure out "how come". She says that she used a shell-like container while everybody else used a shell. She used coral roses and almost everybody else used shell pink roses.

Sweet William Is Karshner Specialty

Mrs. Karshner Has Big Planting of This Old Fashioned Favorite

A tiny tomato patch, a row of onions and a fringe of red ruffled lettuce is all the space that Mrs. Leslie Karshner, 352 Watt St., is willing to allot to vegetables. The rest of the yard is planted with flowers.

And if you see Mrs. Karshner's planting of hybrid sweet William you will agree that she is too lucky with flowers to spend much time or allow much space to mere vegetables.

The sweet William seed originally came from Illinois. But Mrs. Karshner saves the seed now from her favorite colors. She has pinks, whites, velvety reds and many rich and beautiful combinations of these colors.

* * *

ONE PLANT was even double — a real rarity.

Mrs. Karshner tries her hand at everything. At the moment the big sweet William planting is the piece - de - resistance. But there are 25 roses in the Karshner yard. There are dahlias in excellent state of growth. There are tuberous rooted begonias that will in time give a fine display.

In a planter made of concrete bricks by her husband Mrs. Karshner has her giant petunias. If they are all as giant - sized as the one now in bloom her petunias will be a real sight. She has one petunia plant with a four - inch blossom on it. She grew it from seed.

Mrs. Karshner has brought many of her house plants outside where they are flourishing on the north side of the house. She also has a bed of wildlings which includes hypaticas, bluebells, Indian pink, ferns, wild ginger, wild iris and several other things.

More intriguing yet is the fact that in her home Mrs. Karshner has a "flower room" with four sunny windows. Here she has her African Violets, her miniature geraniums, a gloxinia and cactus.

Mrs. Karshner knows a secret about making cactus blossom. This she divulged to the garden editor. If you have a cactus plant do try this and see if it also works for you.

* * *

MRS. Karshner has excellent luck with African violets. She starts them from leaves. When a violet fancier comes to see her and wants a leaf Mrs. Karshner will give her not only a leaf but a small plant.

She has a number of young plants that she keeps just for this purpose.

With Bloom in Late May Chester Garden Is Ablaze

If you visit Kinderhook in late May you cannot miss the garden of Mrs. Robert Chester. It is this season that Mrs. Chester's flowers are a blaze of glory.

She specializes in iris and peonies. They are planted in rows in a fenced - in garden. It's a big garden and the planting is extensive.

Since Mrs. Chester has so many irises and peonies we were concerned as to how she kept the weeds down. The answer was, "A garden tractor".

Mrs. Chester moved from Hallsville to Kinderhook about 18 years ago and took with her the nucleus for this extensive planting.

She swaps varieties. She gives away plants when she thins out. Occasionally she finds a seedling that has grown to blooming size without her knowledge.

The iris were in full bloom when we visited the Chester garden.

Because she has numerous varieties Mrs. Chester's peonies bloom for six weeks. That's why she likes peonies. The iris are gone in two weeks, sometimes ten days. But while they are in bloom they are a sight to behold.

"No", she said. "They are just for pleasure."

* * *

THE IRIS and peonies steal the show in May. But Mrs. Chester had other interesting plant material. She had a snow ball bush and a fringe tree, a pink locust, an old fashioned yellow rose and a blue wisteria. Moreover the Chesters had strawberries and peas.

So you may put Mrs. Chester down as a green thumb gardener. A farmer's wife, she successfully combines gardening and livestock raising. The Chesters have 18 dairy cows, chickens, beef cattle and nine dogs.

We asked Mrs. Chester if the dogs and the flowers did not give her trouble on occasion. "That is one reason the peonies and iris are fenced off", she told us.

Mrs. Chester said at one time they did have a dog they called "Tulip" because he just could not resist the tulip bed. He was always scratching around or lying in the tulips.

So next year, if you are garden hopping do put Kinderhook on your list at iris - peony time. You can't miss the Chester garden. It's too big and too beautiful.

Plain Flowers Combine Well

All experienced gardeners are interested in good garden companions. Frequently the beauty of a flower can be enhanced by the flowers which grow near it.

Never has this been brought more forcibly to mind than when we saw a stunning combination of flowers in the garden of Mrs. Turney Pontius, Route 4, Circleville.

Blooming together were two clumps of Spuria Iris, one white and yellow, the other yellow. Surrounding these giant clumps was a border of sundrops or evening primrose.

* * *

The evening primrose, so common in all our gardens, grows about 18 inches high and is identical in color to the yellow in the spuria iris. It is a mass of yellow bloom now.

If you have these plants in your garden, and you no doubt do, plant them so they can be companions and really be shown to the best advantage.

Fancy Garlics Adorn Garden

Mrs. Fetherolf Likes Unusuals

Mrs. Ed Fetherolf, Stringtown, is a veteran gardener with an adventurous spirit. She gets a big buzz out of growing new and rare plants.

This year she is again experimenting with the ornamental garlic clan, the Alliums. She has five different varieties, each curious and beautiful in its formation.

The bulbs were purchased from Walter Marx, Oregon.

Yes, Mrs. Fetherolf could name them. She did not have them labeled in the garden. Nor did she have a garden map.

* * *

INSTEAD she had written on the catalogue, where they were listed, the precise location at which she had planted the bulb.

Allium, Aflatuense, has a perfectly round flower head made up of many violet colored florets. It has a tall stem, three feet high and amaryllis like foilage. It needs staking. It is a beautiful and unusual flower. A planting of a dozen or more would be a gorgeous addition to any flower garden.

Another variety had a flower head about 10 inches in diameter. It was a perfect sphere. It grew on a stem about a foot high. It was made up of lilac star-shaped florets.

* * *

ALLIUM, Azureum, was a true blue variety about an inch and a half in diameter. A planting of these with yellow and pink flowers would be most attractive.

All in all we were delighted to see these ornamental garlics. They make a nice splash of color, add interest and variety, and, according to Mrs. Fetherolf are not expensive.

Charitable Trusts Showing Increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy has reported registration of 1,250 charitable trusts with assets of more than 323 million dollars.

"Registrations for 1960 greatly exceed the rate for the prior five-year period," McElroy reported. "Part of the reason is a new interpretation of the charitable trust act which indicates that incorporated trusts are not relieved from registration because of their incorporation.

Clifton Lilies 'Showin' Off'

The Cliftons have a new home facing south. The madonna lilies are planted against the house and look their best against the cool green color with which the house is painted.

The lilies were chin high. Each stalk had from 14 to 18 lilies blooming on it. The usual number of blossoms on madonna lily stalk is between five and eight, occasionally ten.

Mrs. Clifton is surprised as anyone else at the magnificance of the bloom. She attributes it to the fact that she used sheep manure at the time she planted the bulbs.

* * *

THE BULBS were planted about six inches deep and the manure spread over the top. Last year they did not bloom at all.

Each lily stalk had to be staked because of the heaviness of its bloom. The Cliftons get quite a sweep of wind on occasion. That is another reason that the lilies were carefully staked.

This year she is again experimenting with the ornamental garlic clan, the Alliums. She has five different varieties, each curious and beautiful in its formation.

The bulbs were purchased from Walter Marx, Oregon.

Yes, Mrs. Fetherolf could name them. She did not have them labeled in the garden. Nor did she have a garden map.

* * *

INSTEAD she had written on the catalogue, where they were listed, the precise location at which she had planted the bulb.

For instance, beside Allium, Aflatuense, she had written "At front fence".

Allium, Aflatuense, has a perfect ly round flower head made up of many violet colored florets. It has a tall stem, three feet high and amaryllis like foilage. It needs staking. It is a beautiful and unusual flower. A planting of a dozen or more would be a gorgeous addition to any flower garden.

Another variety had a flower head about 10 inches in diameter. It was a perfect sphere. It grew on a stem about a foot high. It was made up of lilac star-shaped florets.

* * *

ALLIUM, Azureum, was a true blue variety about an inch and a half in diameter. A planting of these with yellow and pink flowers would be most attractive.

In a round back bed were two other varieties; Allium, Moly a yellow variety and Allium Ostrowskianum, a short (6 inches) magenta.

These two had flat heads made up of small florets.

All in all we were delighted to see these ornamental garlics. They make a nice splash of color, add interest and variety, and, according to Mrs. Fetherolf are not expensive.

Charitable Trusts Showing Increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy has reported registration of 1,250 charitable trusts with assets of more than 323 million dollars.

Statute requires registration of charitable trusts, set up for benevolent purposes, and biennial reports to the attorney general.

"Registrations for 1960 greatly exceed the rate for the prior five-year period," McElroy reported. "Part of the reason is a new interpretation of the charitable trust act which indicates that incorporated trusts are not relieved from registration because of their incorporation.

Clifton Lilies 'Showin' Off'

Apparently it's been a good year for madonna lilies. Certainly Mrs. Lewis Clifton's lilies are giving a top notch performance. She lives just outside Tarlton. Her address is Route 4, Circleville.

The Cliftons have a new home facing south. The madonna lilies are planted against the house and look their best against the cool green color with which the house is painted.

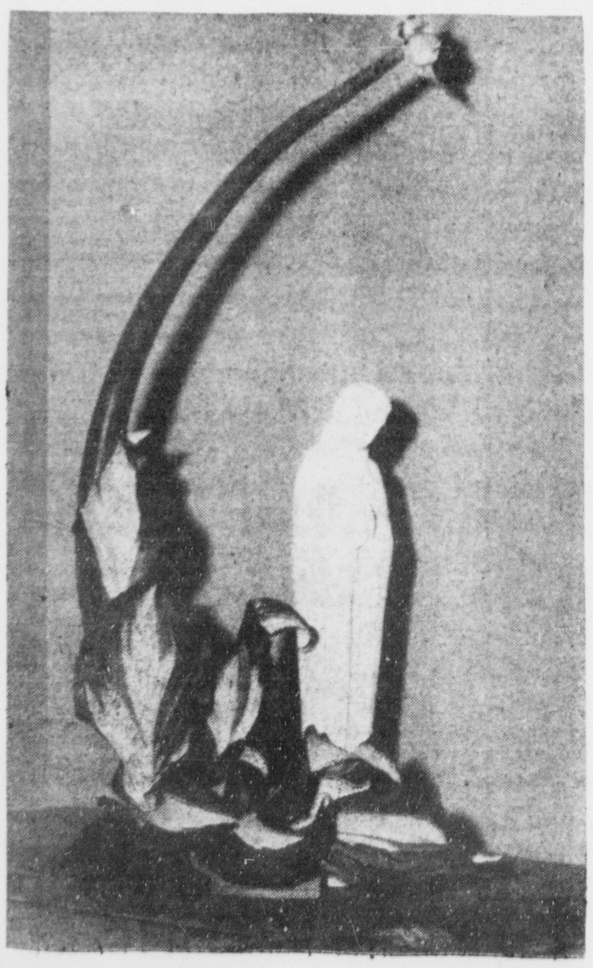

The lilies were chin high. Each stalk had from 14 to 18 lilies blooming on it. The usual number of blossoms on madonna lily stalk is between five and eight, occasionally ten.

Mrs. Clifton is surprised as anyone else at the magnificance of the bloom. She attributes it to the fact that she used sheep manure at the time she planted the bulbs.

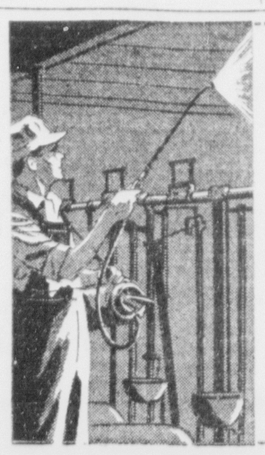

* * *

THE BULBS were planted about six inches deep and the manure spread over the top. Last year they did not bloom at all.

Each lily stalk had to be staked because of the heaviness of its bloom. The Cliftons get quite a sweep of wind on occasion. That is another reason that the lilies were carefully staked.

Limping Mick, Aging Ford Aid Yank Comeback

Mantle's 3 RBIs Plus Whitey's Shutout Keep Bombers Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mickey Mantle's hobbled but hammerin', Whitey Ford's no longer a question mark and the New York Yankees have junked Frank Lary's jinx for a half-game lead that's bigger than it looks in the American League pennant race.

The Mick, limping on bum legs, drove in three runs with a pair of homers in support of Ford's four-hit shutout for a 6-0 job on the Tigers and Lary at Detroit Tuesday night. It was the first victory in almost a month for Ford, who had lost three in a row for only the second time in his nine-year career.

It also was the Yankees' second victory of the year over Lary—a right-hander they had managed to beat just twice in 14 decisions over two seasons.

While the Yankees won their fifth in a row, the Chicago White Sox clipped second-place Baltimore 4-3. Cleveland defeated Washington 5-4 and Kansas City cracked Boston 11-7, despite two home runs and four RBI by Ted Williams.

Ford (3-5), the stubby southpaw charged with the Yankees' only two losses in 17 games, bounced back by giving up nothing but singles while extending the Tigers' scoreless slump through 27 innings.

Lary (6-7), now 22-8 lifetime against the Yanks, was beaten in the fourth when Roger Maris tripled and came in on a wild pitch. He gave up 11 of New York's 14 hits, including both of Mantle's shots.

The White Sox, after losing four in a row, jumped past Detroit into fourth place on a tie-breaking home run by Jim Landis in the ninth. Landis, tagging reliever Chuck Estrada (6-3) with the defeat, also drove in a second-inning run and nailed a Baltimore runner at the plate with a peg from center field. Frank Baumann (4-3) won it in relief.

The diagnosis was wrong. Those San Francisco Giants weren't suffering from Rigneymortis after all.

If owner Horace Stoneham hoped to jog his club back to life when he replaced manager Bill Rigney with head scout Tom (Clancy) Sheehan last weekend, he neglected to let the Giants in on his motive. They've looked just as bad for Sheehan as they did for Rigney—only quicker.

It took the Giants 56 games under Rig to lose three in a row this season, but they matched that slump in just four games under Clancy. They tumbled 5½ games off the pace in the National League race in a twi-night doubleheader loss at Milwaukee Tuesday night.

The sweep, 9-6 and 2-1 in 12 innings, moved the second-place Braves within 3½ games of front-running Pittsburgh. The Pirates defeated St. Louis 3-2 as reliever Roy Face saved Vern Law's 11th victory, tops in the majors.

Playground Equipment Ordered

The Southend Playground Equipment citizens group today turned over a check to Circleville Park Commission chairman, Edgar M. Webb, of $1,072.79 for the purchase of much needed recreational equipment.

Already ordered and expected to arrive the latter part of this week are: a heavy-duty merry-go-round at $199.45; heavy-duty four board teeter-totter, $98.85;

Extra heavy - duty nine - seat swing set with safety rubber swing seats, $349.50; nursery three-seat swing set which is specially equipped with contoured fiber glass nursery swing seats, $78.55;

* * *

SHIPPING COSTS will amount to $55.55. The equipment was ordered from an Anderson, Ind., playground equipment manufacturing firm.

Chairman of the citizens group, which solicited donations throughout the city, Charles H. Glitt, said more money is coming in and hopes to raise $1,400 in all.

The City Park Board also announced today that new lights are going in at the softball diamond in Ted Lewis Park. Poles were purchased from the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co.

Saturday morning, several employes of the General Telephone Co., and their supervisor, Keith Wagner, dug holes for the four poles, which will encircle the diamond, and installed them in the ground.

Employes of C&SO will fasten light fixtures to the poles this week and General Telephone will erect the crossbars of lights this weekend.

The light fixtures cost $29.65 apiece at wholesale prices. Estimated costs of the four poles around the diamond has been set at more than $1,000.

* * *

DUE TO LACK of funds, the four outfield light poles and fixtures cannot be erected until next year if adequate funds are obtained.

The two light poles nearest home plate have been moved back. They will be stationed at the end of the bleachers. The other two poles will be located near first and third base or 90 feet from home plate.

The two home plate poles will have five light fixtures each. The two poles by first and third base will have seven lights each for a total of 24. Presently not more than 10 light fixtures are burning.

Reason for replacing the lights have been the continual complants from all concerned that the lights are not adequate. Attempting to repair present fixtures and adjust them have proved futile due to rusted connections and general collapse of the electrical mechanisms.

Also, electrical repairmen have refused to climb the poles this year due to the narrowness of the upper part of the poles. Several of the poles are ready to snap at the top, which endangers the life of pole climbers.

Late Drive in Stretch Wins Hamilton Feature

Cokes Regain Share of Lead; Oilers, Plastics Chalk Wins

Coca Cola regained a share of the Little League Majors' lead last night with a 6-3 victory over Ralston Purina while Circleville Oil downed Savings Bank, 15-2, and Lincoln Plastic toppled Rotary, 13-3.

The Coke Jets backed yearling hurler, Daryl Reinhard, with a nine-hit attack on Purina's Phil Smith to wrap up win No. 4 against one loss. Purina is the only team to defeat Coca Cola so far this year.

Reinhard was relieved by Chester Hill in the late innings. Between the two pitchers, they walked two and struck out eight. Smith went the route for Purina, issuing four free passes and fanning six.

* * *

PLASTIC moved into a third place tie in the LL minors with Third National Bank and Savings Bank. Mike Martindale hurled the distance for the Molders while Lynn Heath was charged with the loss.

Martindale fanned seven and walked nine. Heath issued 11 free passes and whiffed six. Martindale limited Rotary to two hits, both singles by Bruce Tigner and David Roy.

Circleville Oil tied Ward's Market for second place in the minors as its ace pitcher, Johnny Funk, limited Savings Bank to three hits. The Oilers banged out 13 hits.

Funk led the onslaught against two Savings' hurlers with two triples and a home run. In going the route, Funk fanned 13 and walked six. Terry Hull took the loss. He was relieved by Tom Cassill in the third.

* * *

HULL WALKED five and struck out four. Cassill issued two walks and whiffed two. Oiler doubles were smashed by Ralph Cline, Branson Hawkes, Mike Humphries, Barry Adams and Dale Byrd. Cline had a triple and Adams added a homer.

Cassill was Savings' top hitter with a double and a triple. Mike Young also had a three - bagger. Savings had three miscues compared to Circleville Oil's one.

Today's action at 5:15 p. m. pits Blue Ribbon (1-3) against the Jaycees (4-0) on the LL diamond and First National Bank (0-4) goes after win No. 1 against Second National (2-3) on the softball diamond.

DuPont (3-2) battles Chamber of Commerce (3-2) at 7:30 p. m. on the softball diamond.

Four games are on tap tomorrow. At 5:15 p. m. Circleville Oil meets Third National Bank (3-2) on the Southend Playground; Rotary faces Ward's Market (4-1) on the LL diamond, Ashville (2-3) meets General Electric (4-1) on the softball diamond, and Kiwanis (3-2) travels to Derby (0-5) for the first game with the Babe Ruth League's newest addition.

Toronto Edges Columbus 3-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

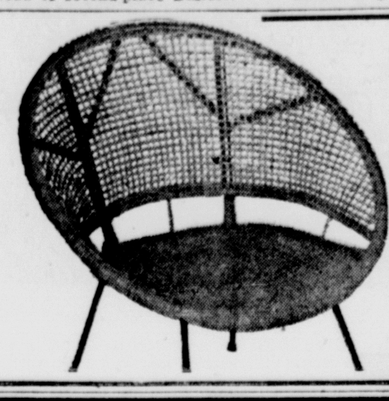

Bob (Riverboat) Smith apparently is not going to be outdone by the other stalwarts of the first-place Toronto Maple Leafs' pitching staff.

The clever left-hander hung up his eighth victory in ten decisions Tuesday night, 3-2 over the Columbus Jets. This gives him a one-game edge over the two other mainstays of the International League club, Ron Negray and Steve Ridzik, who are 7-2.

This trio, plus relief artist Russ Heman, who also helped out Smith Tuesday night and has a 6-0 record, have 28 of the Leafs' 41 victories, to keep the 5½ games ahead of second-place Buffalo.

The Bisons were edged by Havana 3-2 while third-place Richmond won its fifth straight, 4-0 over tail-end Montreal. Rochester and Miami split a twin bill. The Red Wings on 6-0 after Miami took the opener 5-3.

Smith, who struck out eight bailed himself out of jams in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings, before departing with two out and the bases loaded in the eighth. Heman fanned Nini Tornay to end the threat. Earl Hersh's triple and single set up the first two Toronto runs and Steve Demeter's sixth homer got the clincher. Tom Cheney (4-7) lost, though striking out 12 and giving only six hits in nine innings.

Limping Mick, Aging Ford Aid Yank Comeback

Mantle's 3 RBIs Plus Whitey's Shutout Keep Bombers Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mickey Mantle's hobbled but hammerin', Whitey Ford's no longer a question mark and the New York Yankees have junked Frank Lary's jinx for a half-game lead that's bigger than it looks in the American League pennant race.

The Mick, limping on bum legs, drove in three runs with a pair of homers in support of Ford's four-hit shutout for a 6-0 job on the Tigers and Lary at Detroit Tuesday night. It was the first victory in almost a month for Ford, who had lost three in a row for only the second time in his nine-year career.

It also was the Yankees' second victory of the year over Lary —a right-hander they had managed to beat just twice in 14 decisions over two seasons.

While the Yankees won their fifth in a row, the Chicago White Sox clipped second-place Baltimore 4-3. Cleveland defeated Washington 5-4 and Kansas City cracked Boston 11-7, despite two home runs and four RBI by Ted Williams.

Ford (3-5), the stubby southpaw charged with the Yankees' only two losses in 17 games, bounced back by giving up nothing but singles while extending the Tigers' scoreless slump through 27 innings.

Lary (6-7), now 22-8 lifetime against the Yanks, was beaten in the fourth when Roger Maris tripled and came in on a wild pitch. He gave up 11 of New York's 14 hits, including both of Mantle's shots.

The White Sox, after losing four in a row, jumped past Detroit into fourth place on a tie-breaking home run by Jim Landis in the ninth. Landis, tagging reliever Chuck Estrada (6-3) with the defeat, also drove in a second-inning run and nailed a Baltimore runner at the plate with a peg from center field. Frank Baumann (4-3) won it in relief.

The diagnosis was wrong. Those San Francisco Giants weren't suffering from Rigneymortis after all.

If owner Horace Stoneham hoped to jog his club back to life when he replaced manager Bill Rigney with head scout Tom (Clancy) Sheehan last weekend, he neglected to let the Giants in on his motive. They've looked just as bad for Sheehan as they did for Rigney—only quicker.

It took the Giants 56 games under Rig to lose three in a row this season, but they matched that slump in just four games under Clancy. They tumbled 5½ games off the pace in the National League race in a twi-night doubleheader loss at Milwaukee Tuesday night.

The sweep, 9-6 and 2-1 in 12 innings, moved the second-place Braves within 3½ games of front-running Pittsburgh. The Pirates defeated St. Louis 3-2 as reliever Roy Face saved Vern Law's 11th victory, tops in the majors.

Playground Equipment Ordered

The Southend Playground Equipment citizens group today turned over a check to Circleville Park Commission chairman, Edgar M. Webb, of $1,072.79 for the purchase of much needed recreational equipment.

Already ordered and expected to arrive the latter part of this week are: a heavy-duty merry-go-round at $199.45; heavy-duty four board teeter-totter, $98.85;

Extra heavy - duty nine - seat swing set with safety rubber swing seats, $349.50; nursery three-seat swing set which is specially equipped with contoured fiber glass nursery swing seats, $78.55;

All steel straight shute slide with lifetime stainless steel bedway, standing eight foot, $120.50, and a 16-foot slide of the same quality at $201.85.

* * *

SHIPPING COSTS will amount to $55.55. The equipment was ordered from an Anderson, Ind., playground equipment manufacturing firm.

Chairman of the citizens group, which solicited donations throughout the city, Charles H. Glitt, said more money is coming in and hopes to raise $1,400 in all.

The City Park Board also announced today that new lights are going in at the softball diamond in Ted Lewis Park. Poles were purchased from the Columbus & Southern Ohio Electric Co.

Saturday morning, several employes of the General Telephone Co., and their supervisor, Keith Wagner, dug holes for the four poles, which will encircle the diamond, and installed them in the ground.

Employes of C&SO will fasten light fixtures to the poles this week and General Telephone will erect the crossbars of lights this weekend.

The light fixtures cost $29.65 apiece at wholesale prices. Estimated costs of the four poles around the diamond has been set at more than $1,000.

* * *

DUE TO LACK of funds, the four outfield light poles and fixtures cannot be erected until next year if adequate funds are obtained.

The two light poles nearest home plate have been moved back. They will be stationed at the end of the bleachers. The other two poles will be located near first and third base or 90 feet from home plate.

The two home plate poles will have five light fixtures each. The two poles by first and third base will have seven lights each for a total of 24. Presently not more than 10 light fixtures are burning.

Reason for replacing the lights have been the continual complaints from all concerned that the lights are not adequate. Attempting to repair present fixtures and adjust them have proved futile due to rusted connections and general collapse of the electrical mechanisms.

Also, electrical repairmen have refused to climb the poles this year due to the narrowness of the upper part of the poles. Several of the poles are ready to snap at the top, which endangers the life of pole climbers.

Late Drive in Stretch Wins Hamilton Feature

Chief Isaac led the field until the last eight-mile pole when driver Southern Rodgers urged Roxie Wisdom to a speedup and brushed off a challenge by second place Duke Mite at the wire.

Cokes Regain Share of Lead; Oilers, Plastics Chalk Wins

Coca Cola regained a share of the Little League Majors' lead last night with a 6-3 victory over Ralston Purina while Circleville Oil downed Savings Bank, 15-2, and Lincoln Plastic toppled Rotary, 13-3.

The Coke Jets backed yearling hurler, Daryl Reinhard, with a nine-hit attack on Purina's Phil Smith to wrap up win No. 4 against one loss. Purina is the only team to defeat Coca Cola so far this year.

Reinhard was relieved by Chester Hill in the late innings. Between the two pitchers, they walked two and struck out eight. Smith went the route for Purina, issuing four free passes and fanning six.

Chester Hill had the only extra base hits of the contest, two doubles. Purina committed four errors to Coke's three.

* * *

PLASTIC moved into a third place tie in the LL minors with Third National Bank and Savings Bank. Mike Martindale hurled the distance for the Molders while Lynn Heath was charged with the loss.

Martindale fanned seven and walked nine. Heath issued 11 free passes and whiffed six. Martindale limited Rotary to two hits, both singles by Bruce Tigner and David Roy.

Rotary committed three errors to Plastic's two. Rotary still is winless on the year with an 0-5 record while Plastic stands 3-2.

Circleville Oil tied Ward's Market for second place in the minors as its ace pitcher, Johnny Funk, limited Savings Bank to three hits. The Oilers banged out 13 hits.

Funk led the onslaught against two Savings' hurlers with two triples and a home run. In going the route, Funk fanned 13 and walked six. Terry Hull took the loss. He was relieved by Tom Cassill in the third.

* * *

HULL WALKED five and struck out four. Cassill issued two walks and whiffed two. Oiler doubles were smashed by Ralph Cline, Branson Hawkes, Mike Humphries, Barry Adams and Dale Byrd. Cline had a triple and Adams added a homer.

Cassill was Savings' top hitter with a double and a triple. Mike Young also had a three - bagger. Savings had three miscues compared to Circleville Oil's one.

Today's action at 5:15 p. m. pits Blue Ribbon (1-3) against the Jaycees (4-0) on the LL diamond and First National Bank (0-4) goes after win No. 1 against Second National (2-3) on the softball diamond.

DuPont (3-2) battles Chamber of Commerce (3-2) at 7:30 p. m. on the softball diamond.

Four games are on tap tomorrow. At 5:15 p. m. Circleville Oil meets Third National Bank (3-2) on the Southend Playground; Rotary faces Ward's Market (4-1) on the LL diamond, Ashville (2-3) meets General Electric (4-1) on the softball diamond, and Kiwanis (3-2) travels to Derby (0-5) for the first game with the Babe Ruth League's newest addition.

Inge-Floyd Rematch Stalled By Fear of High Taxation

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson have a problem that should happen to everyone. They would like to fight again within 90 days and earn maybe a million bucks apiece. But they may not be able to afford it this year because of the tremendous tax bite.

The two young heavyweights, recrowned champion Patterson, and dethroned Johansson, may have earned record purses of a million dollars each for their second fight Monday night.

So the answer to whether there will be a rubber match this year most likely will be furnished by their lawyers and financial advisers.

The explosive fight, in which Patterson regained the title by flattening the Swede in the fifth round, lured 31,892 paying fans and $824,891 to the Polo Grounds.

Irving Kahn, the president of TelePrompTer which handled the closed circuit television, movies and radio, said the extras will gross about $3,000,000. Of this, he said optimistically, the fighters should collect between $800,000 and $900,000 each in addition to $175,000 each from the gate receipts.

Gene Tunney set an all-time high of $990,445 for his second fight with Jack Dempsey at Chicago in 1927, an era in which the tax bite was mild compared to what it is today.

At separate press conferences Tuesday, Johansson and Patterson said they would like the third fight within 90 days. Naturally the promoting Feature Sports, Inc., was more than anxious to oblige.

Patterson, elated at becoming the first former heavyweight king to regain the crown, said he had a contract for a third fight with Ingo and intended to fulfill it.

"If I should win," he said, "I would like to negotiate with other contenders, possibly (Sonny) Liston.

Liston, the hottest and heaviest hitter among the contenders, meets Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., at Denver July 18. Liston is from Philadelphia.

"I want the return," said Johansson, 27, who suffered the first defeat of his pro career. "Patterson was fresher and stronger this time. He caught me with a good punch and that was that. Maybe next time it will be different. I always said anything can happen in a fight. This time it happened the better for him. The next time it can be my turn."

What did he think he did wrong in the fifth round when he was knocked down twice by left hooks, the last time for the count?

"I think I was a little low (meaning with his hands)", he said. "I must have thought he was going to the body. And I kept my chin up a little high."

Why didn't he storm after Patterson in the second round when he appeared to have hurt Floyd with a high right to the head?

"He was just trying to look bad," said Ingo. (Patterson confirmed this). "I was pretty sure he was not too bad and was playing that he was hurt bad. I thought I would have plenty of time to get him in a long fight."

Of this moment, Patterson said "It did hurt but not as much as it looked. I hoped he would come charging in like he did in the first fight (when Johansson stopped him in the third round). Unfortunately, he didn't."

Asked if he thought the public wanted third fight, Patterson said: "I think so, if you look at it this way. In the first fight I definitely was overconfident from what I had read. I was surprised. In the second fight Ingemar more or less underestimated me because things had been so easy for him. The third should decide the championship."

Purdue Senior Leads Tourney Qualifiers

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Medalist Gene Francis of Purdue, the big surprise of qualifying play, met Lary Brown of Southern California today in the opening round of match play in the NCAA golf championships.

The Purdue senior was one of only three players among the 187 starters to break par 36-35—71 over the windy and hilly 7,035 - yard Boadmoor course the past two days. He had a 70 Monday but went two over par Tuesday.

Medalist runnerup Jack Nicklaus of Ohio State, the National Amateur champion, qualified with 146. He shot 76 Tuesday. His first round opponent is Al Yancey of Army (152).

Houston swept the team championship for the fifth straight year with 603. That was the total strokes of its four lowest scoring entrants—Jack Cupit, last year's medalist, 147; defending individual champion Dick Crawford, 150; Tony Marimon, 153; and Homero Blancas, 153.

Purdue and Oklahoma State tied for runnerup at 607.

The cutoff for qualifications was 155.

Ohio State finished 13th and Ohio University tied for 17th in the team event involving 34 schools. The Buckeyes used 624 strokes, the Bobcats 629.

For Ohio State, Mike Podolsky hit 80-73—153 to join Nicklaus as a qualifier for match play; Frank Carr had 158, Alan Jones 167, Dick Butler 167.

Ohio U.'s Ed Gordon with 77-77—154 and Larry Snyder at 73-81—154 moved into match play and the team score was rounded out by Dow Reichley's 72-84?s156 and Bill Santor's 76-84—160. Fifth man Bob Bryant went 82-79—161.

Early Wynn of the Chicago White Sox leads the American League's active pitchers in shutouts with 42. He had five last season.

Scioto Downs Fastest Track

The speedy Scioto Downs 5-8 — mile track has been re-rated at 2:03 3-5, making it the fastest 5-8—mile track in the country, The United States Trotting Assn. announced today.

The 5-8 — mile track at Sportsman's Park, Chicago, Ill., has been rated at 2:04 1-5 and Hazel Park, Detroit, Mich., at 2:04.

The new speed rating lists Scioto Downs at 1 2-5 seconds faster than Northfield Park, Cleveland, and approximately three seconds faster than Lebanon and Hamilton.

The speed ratings for the half-mile tracks in this area are: North field, 2:05; Lebanon, 2:06 2-5; Hamilton, 2:06 4-5 and Maywood Park, Chicago, Ill., 2:05 1-5.

The U.S.T.A. speed ratings are arrived at by comparing the performance of horses as they move from one track to another. By obtaining a sizable sample, the U. S. T.A. determines just how much the average horse will move up or down in speed when he moves from one track to another. The speed ratings are published on race programs.

Bradley Turns Out Baseball Stars Too

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — More famed for its basketball play, Bradley University quietly has established itself a pretty fair breeding ground for major league baseball prospects.

Three players recently were signed by major league scouts from this year's Braves baseball club, raising to 29 the number of Braves Coach Leo Schrall has seen go into professional ranks in 12 years.

Pitcher Harold Kunkel and outfielder-first baseman Bill Dixon were signed by the San Francisco Giants, reportedly for a $15,000 bonus each. The Cincinnati Reds latched onto outfielder Larry Pohlman for a bonus said to be around $5,000.

Inge-Floyd Rematch Stalled By Fear of High Taxation

NEW YORK (AP)—Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson have a problem that should happen to everyone. They would like to fight again within 90 days and earn maybe a million bucks apiece. But they may not be able to afford it this year because of the tremendous tax bite.

The two young heavyweights, recrowned champion Patterson, and dethroned Johansson, may have earned record purses of a million dollars each for their second fight Monday night.

So the answer to whether there will be a rubber match this year most likely will be furnished by their lawyers and financial advisers.

The explosive fight, in which Patterson regained the title by flattening the Swede in the fifth round, lured 31,892 paying fans and $824,891 to the Polo Grounds.

Irving Kahn, the president of TelePrompTer which handled the closed circuit television, movies and radio, said the extras will gross about $3,000,000. Of this, he said optimistically, the fighters should collect between $800,000 and $900,000 each in addition to $175,000 each from the gate receipts.

Gene Tunney set an all-time high of $990,445 for his second fight with Jack Dempsey at Chicago in 1927, an era in which the tax bite was mild compared to what it is today.

At separate press conferences Tuesday, Johansson and Patterson said they would like the third fight within 90 days. Naturally the promoting Feature Sports, Inc., was more than anxious to oblige.

Patterson, elated at becoming the first former heavyweight king to regain the crown, said he had a contract for a third fight with Ingo and intended to fulfill it.

"If I should win," he said, "I would like to negotiate with other contenders, possibly (Sonny) Liston.

Liston, the hottest and heaviest hitter among the contenders, meets Zora Folley of Chandler, Ariz., at Denver July 18. Liston is from Philadelphia.

"I want the return," said Johansson, 27, who suffered the first defeat of his pro career. "Patterson was fresher and stronger this time. He caught me with a good punch and that was that. Maybe next time it will be different. I always said anything can happen in a fight. This time it happened the better for him. The next time it can be my turn."

What did he think he did wrong in the fifth round when he was knocked down twice by left hooks, the last time for the count?

"I think I was a little low (meaning with his hands)", he said. "I must have thought he was going to the body. And I kept my chin up a little high."

Why didn't he storm after Patterson in the second round when he appeared to have hurt Floyd with a high right to the head?

"He was just trying to look bad," said Ingo. (Patterson confirmed this). "I was pretty sure he was not too bad and was playing that he was hurt bad. I thought I would have plenty of time to get him in a long fight."

Of this moment, Patterson said "It did hurt but not as much as it looked. I hoped he would come charging in like he did in the first fight (when Johansson stopped him in the third round). Unfortunately, he didn't."

Asked if he thought the public wanted third fight, Patterson said: "I think so, if you look at it this way. In the first fight I definitely was overconfident from what I had read. I was surprised. In the second fight Ingemar more or less underestimated me because things had been so easy for him. The third should decide the championship."

College Golfers Vie for Laurels

Purdue Senior Leads Tourney Qualifiers

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Medalist Gene Francis of Purdue, the big surprise of qualifying play, met Lary Brown of Southern California today in the opening round of match play in the NCAA golf championships.

The Purdue senior was one of only three players among the 187 starters to break par 36-35—71 over the windy and hilly 7,035 - yard Boadmoor course the past two days. He had a 70 Monday but went two over par Tuesday.

Medalist runnerup Jack Nicklaus of Ohio State, the National Amateur champion, qualified with 146. He shot 76 Tuesday. His first round opponent is Al Yancey of Army (152).

Houston swept the team championship for the fifth straight year with 603. That was the total strokes of its four lowest scoring entrants—Jack Cupit, last year's medalist, 147; defending individual champion Dick Crawford, 150; Tony Marimon, 153; and Homero Blancas, 153.

Purdue and Oklahoma State tied for runnerup at 607.

The cutoff for qualifications was 155.

Ohio State finished 13th and Ohio University tied for 17th in the team event involving 34 schools. The Buckeyes used 624 strokes, the Bobcats 629.

For Ohio State, Mike Podolsky hit 80-73—153 to join Nicklaus as a qualifier for match play; Frank Carr had 158, Alan Jones 167, Dick Butler 167.

Ohio U.'s Ed Gordon with 77-77—154 and Larry Snyder at 73-81—154 moved into match play and the team score was rounded out by Dow Reichley's 72-84⅞156 and Bill Santor's 76-84—160. Fifth man Bob Bryant went 82-79—161.

Early Wynn of the Chicago White Sox leads the American League's active pitchers in shutouts with 42. He had five last season.

Scioto Downs Fastest Track

The speedy Scioto Downs 5-8 — mile track has been re-rated at 2:03 3-5, making it the fastest 5-8—mile track in the country, The United States Trotting Assn. announced today.

The 5-8 — mile track at Sportsman's Park, Chicago, Ill., has been rated at 2:04 1-5 and Hazel Park, Detroit, Mich., at 2:04.

The new speed rating lists Scioto Downs at 1 2-5 seconds faster than Northfield Park, Cleveland, and approximately three seconds faster than Lebanon and Hamilton.

The speed ratings for the half-mile tracks in this area are: North field, 2:05; Lebanon, 2:06 2-5; Hamilton, 2:06 4-5 and Maywood Park, Chicago, Ill., 2:05 1-5.

The U.S.T.A. speed ratings are arrived at by comparing the performance of horses as they move from one track to another. By obtaining a sizable sample, the U. S. T.A. determines just how much the average horse will move up or down in speed when he moves from one track to another. The speed ratings are published on race programs.

Lady Catfish in Ohio Forced Into Family Responsibilities

Not in Ohio, at least!

The Division of Wildlife has perfected a method whereby "Mrs. Whiskers" will have her young, whether she likes it or not.

For various reasons, most of them known only to the fish, some female catfish develop eggs but cannot expel them. Such eggs usually are absorbed and as a result—no baby catfish.

But the federal fish hatchery at Senecaville, aware of this non-cooperation on the part of some of the finny females, has been experimenting with several drugs (glandular extracts) which will bring about the release of eggs from the reluctants.

"We were able, recently, to induce some 60 female catfish to expel their eggs," said James Walsh, hatchery superintendent, "through the injection of the hormone (chorionic gonadotrophin). Within 24 hours, most of them had released their eggs. The water was at 67 or 68 degrees, some seven or eight below that at which channels usually spawn."

The new egg-obtaining procedure will result in more catfish for stocking public waters, the division says.

The Ohio Wildlife Council will hold a public hearing here Thursday, June 23, on fishing and hunting regulations. No fishing changes will be announced immediately, but the open seasons for hunting various game will be made known by Friday, the council said.

The Ohio Division of Watercraft expected boat owners would register 300,000 to 350,000 craft this year—but only about 100,000 have been licensed.

Selling or trading of boats appears to be brisk, the department said, but the early estimate was in error or many boats have not been registered. Every boat using Ohio waters must be registered and numbered.

If you want your name in the record book, head for the nearest lake or stream.

The record fish committee of the Outdoor Writers of Ohio says there are 12 species of fish for which no record is listed. Any substantiated large catch could be "it." Thirty-three classes are listed, but the carp, black crappie and muskie records could fall soon.

If you make a big catch have it weighed and measured in the presence of a game protector, an outdoor writer or other reputable person, and then submit thte facts to Allan Eckert, outdoor editor, the Dayton Journal-Herald, Dayton 2, Ohio.

Lady Catfish in Ohio Forced Into Family Responsibilities

Not in Ohio, at least!

The Division of Wildlife has perfected a method whereby "Mrs. Whiskers" will have her young, whether she likes it or not.

For various reasons, most of them known only to the fish, some female catfish develop eggs but cannot expel them. Such eggs usually are absorbed and as a result—no baby catfish.

But the federal fish hatchery at Senecaville, aware of this non-cooperation on the part of some of the finny females, has been experimenting with several drugs (glandular extracts) which will bring about the release of eggs from the reluctants.

"We were able, recently, to induce some 60 female catfish to expel their eggs," said James Walsh, hatchery superintendent, "through the injection of the hormone (chorionic gonadotrophin). Within 24 hours, most of them had released their eggs. The water was at 67 or 68 degrees, some seven or eight below that at which channels usually spawn."

The new egg-obtaining procedure will result in more catfish for stocking public waters, the division says.

The Ohio Wildlife Council will hold a public hearing here Thursday, June 23, on fishing and hunting regulations. No fishing changes will be announced immediately, but the open seasons for hunting various game will be made known by Friday, the council said.

The Ohio Division of Watercraft expected boat owners would register 300,000 to 350,000 craft this year—but only about 100,000 have been licensed.

Selling or trading of boats appears to be brisk, the department said, but the early estimate was in error or many boats have not been registered. Every boat using Ohio waters must be registered and numbered.

If you want your name in the record book, head for the nearest lake or stream.

The record fish committee of the Outdoor Writers of Ohio says there are 12 species of fish for which no record is listed. Any substantiated large catch could be "it." Thirty-three classes are listed, but the carp, black crappie and muskie records could fall soon.

If you make a big catch have it weighed and measured in the presence of a game protector, an outdoor writer or other reputable person, and then submit thte facts to Allan Eckert, outdoor editor, the Dayton Journal-Herald, Dayton 2, Ohio.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Edd Byrnes, the tall good-looking young actor who shot to TV stardom last year playing a hip apprentice private eye in "77 Sunset Strip" is already concerned about an occupational disease called over-exposure.

This season Edd and his employers, Warner Brothers, became involved in a salary dispute which resulted in Edd's voluntary disappearance from the weekly ABC show for five months. The difficulty has been, as Edd blandly puts it, "adjusted" and he recently returned to his role of "Kookie" the beat-talking, hair-combing parking lot jockey.

"I don't think the walk-out did me a bit of harm," said Edd. "It had the advantage of taking me off the screen for a time and gave people a rest from seeing me every week. After all this time, it may be a good thing."

Byrnes, who looks younger than his 26 years, bears no resemblance to the flip teen-ager he portrays. He takes his career — particularly his acting with utmost seriousness.

"I like playing in the series," he said, "but when you get to a certain point in your career you have to have a blueprint for your future. And I would like to be a motion picture actor — I am for that. That's where you get the best scripts, the fine direction and have the time to work properly. Also, in motion pictures you can play a variety of roles."

What is there about television's top honors—the Emmies—which make the annual awards show less exciting than the motion picture Oscar program? There was none of the pre-show excitement about who would win the TV performing awards. And some of the winners were curious choices. For instance, Jane Wyatt has been playing in "Father Knows Best" for six years and won her first Emmy after the show was discontinued. But Fred Astaire's special last year picked up nine separate Emmies—while his second, produced with almost the same cast and crew, received not a single statuette.

Tribe Bonus Baby Impresses Lane

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sam McDowell, the Cleveland Indians' $75,000 bonus baby from Pittsburgh, took a workout at Municipal Stadium Tuesday and quickly impressed General Manager Frank Lane.

"Sam has the fast ball, but he also has a good curve," explained Lane. "I like to see that. You find a lot of young pitchers with good fast balls. Many of them don't have the loose wrist you need to snap off a curve."

McDowell, a 6-foot-5 left-hander, said he hopes to be back with the Indians in two or three years. "If hard work helps I might make it sooner."

Ohio Cagers Await Duel With Hoosiers

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Some of Ohio's high school basketball greats are working out this week in preparation for Saturday night's third annual game with Indiana's all-star scholastic squad at Fort Wayne.

Ohio, led by Middletown's great Jerry Lucas, won the inaugural game of the interstate series two years ago, but the Hoosiers triumphed in 1959. Each game has attracted a full house of some 8,000 fans.

Paul Walker of Middletown is coaching the Buckeye all - senior squad, which will play a warmup game Friday with standouts from this area.

Making up the squad are Ray Brown of Dayton Roosevelt, Ray Wolford of Toledo Scott, Wayne Lundy of Cincinnati Western Hills, Bob Patton of Martins Ferry, Gary Bradds of Jamestown Greeneview, Jim Johns, of Van Del, Al Thrasher of Salem Local, Ted Day of Xenia, and Gerry Tibbs of Middletown. A tenth member will be selected from the area all-star quintet.

Old Indians Lead Tribe To 5-4 Win

CLEVELAND (AP)—Now that their leg injuries are healed, two "old pros" may be set to get the Cleveland Indians on the right foot again.

With Harvey Kuenn and Johnny Temple delivering in accustomed style, the Indians shaded the Washington Senators 5-4 Tuesday night. Kuenn had three hits, including a two-run homer in the first inning. Temple made two hits, one of them a six-inning double which drove in the tying and winning runs.

That uprising made Jim (Mudcat) Grant the winning pitcher against the Senators for the 13th straight time in his major league career. Against the rest of the league, Grant has only a 12-19 mark.

But Grant was far from effective against his cousins as they whacked him for three home runs and had him down 4-3 when he was removed for a pinch-hitter in the sixth. After the Indians went ahead by a run, Johnny Klippstein came on and hurled three scoreless innings to save Grant's triumph.

Kuenn, moving up in the averages with 7-for-10 in his last three games, now is hitting at .292. Temple, just returning to his usual second base spot, is hitting only .257.

The Senators' Dan Dobbek cracked a solo blast in the second inning. After the Indians added another run in the fourth on singles by Johnny Romano and Woodie Held and a sacrifice fly by Grant, the Senators scored a run in the fifth on pitcher Pedro Ramos' homer.

But in their half of the inning the Indians scored twice on a walk to Romano, a single by Held and Temple's double inside the third base line.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Edd Byrnes, the tall good-looking young actor who shot to TV stardom last year playing a hip apprentice private eye in "77 Sunset Strip" is already concerned about an occupational disease called over-exposure.

This season Edd and his employers, Warner Brothers, became involved in a salary dispute which resulted in Edd's voluntary disappearance from the weekly ABC show for five months. The difficulty has been, as Edd blandly puts it, "adjusted" and he recently returned to his role of "Kookie" the beat-talking, hair-combing parking lot jockey.

"I don't think the walk-out did me a bit of harm," said Edd. "It had the advantage of taking me off the screen for a time and gave people a rest from seeing me every week. After all this time, it may be a good thing."

Byrnes, who looks younger than his 26 years, bears no resemblance to the flip teen-ager he portrays. He takes his career — particularly his acting with utmost seriousness.

"I like playing in the series," he said, "but when you get to a certain point in your career you have to have a blueprint for your future. And I would like to be a motion picture actor — I am for that. That's where you get the best scripts, the fine direction and have the time to work properly. Also, in motion pictures you can play a variety of roles."

What is there about television's top honors—the Emmies—which make the annual awards show less exciting than the motion picture Oscar program? There was none of the pre-show excitement about who would win the TV performing awards. And some of the winners were curious choices. For instance, Jane Wyatt has been playing in "Father Knows Best" for six years and won her first Emmy after the show was discontinued. But Fred Astaire's special last year picked up nine separate Emmies—while his second, produced with almost the same cast and crew, received not a single statuette.

Recommended tonight: "Music for a Summer Night," ABC, 7:30-8:30 a tribute to "The Female of the Species," with Zachary Scott, host; Circle Theatre, CBS, 10-11—"The Prison Professor," a semi-documentary about an imprisoned school teacher and his help to fellow prisoners.

The Senators' Dan Dobbek cracked a solo blast in the second inning. After the Indians added another run in the fourth on singles by Johnny Romano and Woodie Held and a sacrifice fly by Grant, the Senators scored a run in the fifth on pitcher Pedro Ramos' homer.

Probate Court Closing Files From 1934 on

The Pickaway County Probate Court is making a survey of all cases since 1934 in an effort to close the files and approve the final account.

In some instances the old accounts were mislaid, lost or vouchers are missing from the files. In order to facilitate the closing of these cases, the court has written cards to the administrators or executors requesting them to check with their attorneys to determine whether such vouchers or accounts were available.

They attorneys have been cooperative in this effort. They are aiding the court and their clients in this effort, mostly without additional compensation.

This work, when completed, will be beneficial to the estates as well as the court.

* * *

SOME PERSONS, who do not know the nature of an account, associate it with the owing of money to the court or someone else. The term is a legal term adopted by th elegislature and might well be termed a report.

The necessity of this move is created by limited space and the fact that new laws and practices require different types of records than the simple records used in prior years.

The county already has spent several thousand dollars for equipment to make new types of record keeping possible.

The court is sorry that some of the old records were lost, mislaid, or destroyed before permanent records could be made of them. It will be grateful to the administrators, executors, guardians and attorneys for their cooperation in this effort to complete the permanent files and records of the court.

"The move in this field is no more the fault of attorneys or courts than the change from horse and buggy to automobiles, planes and rockets is the fault of engineers.

"It is progress and good business and, we believe, necessary to the proper functioning of the office," court officials said.

Disability Pay Under Social Security Eyed

CLEVELAND (AP)—Social security benefits for disabled workers under age 50 is a top goal of the nation's welfare program, says Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare.

The other major goals are (1) to find through research the causes and cures of cancer and heart disease and (2) construction of elementary and secondary school buildings.

Dr. Flemming, former president of Ohio Wesleyan University, said preservation of Democratic freedoms requires "maximum contributions" from all citizens. He criticized citizens who fail to vote or take part in political affairs and particularly those qualified for public office who do not run for "selfish" reasons.

Some 7,000 persons have been attracted to the 78th annual convention of the National Assn. of Plumbing Contractors and to an exhibition of plumbing, heating and cooling equipment.

Probate Court Closing Files From 1934 on

The Pickaway County Probate Court is making a survey of all cases since 1934 in an effort to close the files and approve the final account.

In some instances the old accounts were mislaid, lost or vouchers are missing from the files. In order to facilitate the closing of these cases, the court has written cards to the administrators or executors requesting them to check with their attorneys to determine whether such vouchers or accounts were available.

They attorneys have been cooperative in this effort. They are aiding the court and their clients in this effort, mostly without additional compensation.

This work, when completed, will be beneficial to the estates as well as the court.

• • •

SOME PERSONS, who do not know the nature of an account, associate it with the owing of money to the court or someone else. The term is a legal term adopted by th elegislature and might well be termed a report.

The necessity of this move is created by limited space and the fact that new laws and practices require different types of records than the simple records used in prior years.

The county already has spent several thousand dollars for equipment to make new types of record keeping possible.

The court is sorry that some of the old records were lost, mislaid, or destroyed before permanent records could be made of them. It will be grateful to the administrators, executors, guardians and attorneys for their cooperation in this effort to complete the permanent files and records of the court.

"The move in this field is no more the fault of attorneys or courts than the change from horse and buggy to automobiles, planes and rockets is the fault of engineers.

"It is progress and good business and, we believe, necessary to the proper functioning of the office," court officials said.

Disability Pay Under Social Security Eyed

CLEVELAND (AP)—Social security benefits for disabled workers under age 50 is a top goal of the nation's welfare program, says Dr. Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare.

The other major goals are (1) to find through research the causes and cures of cancer and heart disease and (2) construction of elementary and secondary school buildings.

Dr. Flemming, former president of Ohio Wesleyan University, said preservation of Democratic freedoms requires "maximum contributions" from all citizens. He criticized citizens who fail to vote or take part in political affairs and particularly those qualified for public office who do not run for "selfish" reasons.

Some 7,000 persons have been attracted to the 78th annual convention of the National Assn. of Plumbing Contractors and to an exhibition of plumbing, heating and cooling equipment.
